Teachers Vote Friday

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court.

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government.

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration.

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans. Sen. Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

Ask Party Abstention

PARIS — The French Communist Party leadership decided Monday night to ask its membership to abstain from the June 15 presidential election runoff between acting President Alain Poher and former Premier Georges Pompidou, who won most of Sunday's votes.

Jacques Duclos of the Communist Party finished third in the Sunday voting. The Communist Party action came shortly after the French Socialist Party threw its support to Poher.

Rain Cripples City

NEW YORK — A lightning-laced thunderstorm drenched Metropolitan New York yesterday with up to two inches of rain, crippling transportation used by hundreds of thousands of commuters and delaying the opening of stock exchanges.

The rain began at 5:20 a.m., but subway service was still tied up late in the day. The weather bureau's electronic rain-measuring equipment was knocked out for the first time in history, and water was often waist deep in streets and subway tracks.

Kennedy Criticized

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen rebuked Sen. Edward Kennedy yesterday for his criticism of the strategy which led to the battle for Hamburger Hill in Vietnam.

Dirksen told the Senate that Kennedy's charge that military commanders were "senseless and irresponsible" in undertaking such battles while peace negotiations were under way jolted his estimate of Kennedy's "wisdom and judgment."

6 Injured At School

KANKAKEE — At least six persons were injured yesterday when black and white students battled at Westview Senior High School in Kankakee.

State, county and city policemen were called in to quell the brawl. The school was closed and police with dogs patrolled the hallways to prevent vandalism. One student was admitted to the hospital with cuts suffered when he plunged through a window.

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Teachers in School Dist. 59 will earn salaries between $7,000 and $14,770 next year if they ratify a package on which both the board of education and Teachers Council leadership agreed last week.

Friday is the date set for voting on the measure, and passage is expected.

Details of the package were released yesterday evening by Supt. Dr. Donald Thomas.

IN ADDITION TO a provision of 14 "steps" each representing a year's experience, the pay scale also includes increase provisions for educational background in six increments.

Three different contracts are being offered, ranging from a basic teaching proposal through "Career Services" contract provisions, which in effect result in year round employment.

Enhancement of fringe benefits was a major factor in acceptance of the contract by district teachers; the agreement reached was based on a schedule of only $100 higher than one which teachers rejected last month.

Most significant in the contract is the statement, "Historically and philosophically the board of education is committed to make every effort to allocate extra funds to decrease class size. The board of education pledges to continue to support this program."

Additionally, "The Teachers Council may enter an alleged grievance for any teacher claiming to be given an intolerable teaching load. An intolerable teaching load is defined as one that is in severe opposition to current education research."

THOSE TWO POINTS were dear ones to teachers and represent a compromise on one of the major factors in briefly deadlocked talks.

The teachers wanted limitations of class size written into the contracts, something the board of education said it could not do. Instead, both compromised on the point and kept the statement general enough to avoid problems with monetary limitations.

Increases in sick and personal business leave allocations was coupled with a doubling of insurance policies available at no cost to faculty members.

A point won by teachers was the insertion of the statement, "No teacher shall be transferred for discriminatory reasons. Prior to being transferred, the teacher shall have a conference with the (school) principal.

PROCEDURES FOR grievances from teachers, as well as operation of a "sick leave bank" were also written into the contracts.

But perhaps the most important in years to come will be the recognition of the School Dist. 59 Teachers Council as sole bargaining representative "over employment conditions, consideration for services rendered, for all certified teachers except substitute teachers and certified teachers assigned to administrative positions."

While it may not seem significant in the context of School Dist. 59, the recognition of the Teachers' Council as a formal bargaining agent for teachers represents a small victory for professional teacher groups in contrast to teacher unions, mostly under the American Federation of Teachers banner.

CLEARMONT OLYMPICS, a pre-Memorial Day round of fun and games at Clearmont School in Elk Grove Village, ended in youthful pandemonium when a sudden shower washed out the program and sent children scattering for cover. Things were better Friday, however, and the one-day vacation from school was perfect for area children.

Schlickman Cites Background

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, predictably became the 13th District's fourth congressional candidate Monday.

He unexpectedly resigned his position as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, excusing himself for reasons of time, both for himself and what should be given the organization.

He will not resign his five-year tenure in the Illinois House of Representatives, however. Unless, according to Schlickman, "only at a time it is certain I'm going to Congress."

Schlickman, 39, announced his candidacy for Congress Monday in a press conference in Arlington Towers. The Northwest suburbs were first on his schedule of press sessions he held throughout the district that day.

HE FACES in the Oct. 7 primary race the declared candidates — Gerald Marks of Wilmettee, Joseph Mathewson of Winnetka and Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth.

Marks Monday commented that he had talked to Schlickman Sunday evening. Marks related that he had offered his support to Schlickman if he is the primary winner.

Schlickman said the main issue in his campaign will be qualification for office. He traced public service through five years in the Illinois House and five years on the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

A second qualifier he mentioned was a legal background as a lawyer in genelal practice. Thirdly, he cited service to the Republican Party as Wheeling Township committeeman, pointing out its successes in delivering Republican votes.

"Wheeling Township in the last election (Nov. 5) got statewide attention and recognition," he said. He later mentioned that the township delivered the largest plurality in the last congressional election of any township in the district.

HE RESIGNED as committeeman, he said, to devote more time to the congressional campaign and to insure the organization's own growth and strengthening.

"I approach the campaign with confidence and enthusiasm," he said in his announcement.

He will announce a campaign manager later, he said.

He viewed his voter strength in the Northwest suburbs but pointed to the large population in Northfield Township, half in his Third Representative District.

The Third District in November, 1968, gave Schlickman the votes to rate him first in the Illinois House in the number of total votes cast for him.

"A special election is more personality than party," he said.

On questioning, the representative said he is an enthusiastic supporter of Pres. Richard M. Nixon's philosophy of administration.

"I may see it necessary to work with the executive branch."

HE SAID Nixon's thoughtful approach to problems, such as hearing all views on the anti-ballistic missile (ABM) program "is the way I'd approach the matter and the way (Donald) Rumsfeld did."

"I think I demonstrate a knowledge of the complexities in national affairs," he said. "I will continue the two-way communication with the district with the questionaires that Rumsfeld used.

"I will be a sensitive and responsible link to Washington."

Schlickman said he had discussed his candidacy Thursday with Gov. Rihcard B. Ogilvie and assured the governor he would not jeopardize the administration bills he is handling. He joked that he is handling Johnston's House Municipalities Committee bills while his opponent is out campaigning.

The candidate has served in the legislature since 1964. He is vice chairman of the House Municipalities Committee and is an Appropriations Committee subcommittee chairman on requests of the governor, lieutenant governor, auditor of public accounts and state treasurer. He is a member of the Illinois Legislative Council and Criminal Diagnosis Council, areas of his legislative interest.

He was an Arlington Heights trustee from 1959 to 1964, resigning to run for the legislature.

Rare Blood Type Needed

An urgent call for a rare blood type is being made by a Mount Prospect woman for her Chicago niece.

Doris Grunlee, 328 Beverly Lane, Mount Prospect, urges anyone with RH type B negative blood who is able to donate to immediately contact either her or the Ravenswood Hospital in Chicago. Anyone willing to donate may do so at an area hospital.

Mrs. Grunlee's niece, Susan Hanson, is at Ravenswood fighting against hemolytic anemia. This is a disease in which blood platelets are destroyed by chemical poisoning.

SUSAN HAD been receiving blood from the bank at Michael Reese Hospital. However, no blood of the appropriate type remains.

Susan, 18, has just completed her freshman year at Northern Illinois University. She resides at 3649 N. Drake, Chicago.

Donors may call either Ravenswood Hospital at UP 8-4300, extension 321, or Mrs. Grunlee at 437-4052 as soon as possible.

Spur Friendship

Parents interested in having children from an inner city family live with them for two weeks this summer are being asked to meet today in the Queen of the Rosary Church in Elk Grove Village at 8 p.m.

Known as the Friendly Town program, it is sponsored locally by the Elk Grove Human Relations Commission and the churches in conjunction with the Christopher House, a Chicago settlement house, and the Church of Good News, also in Chicago.

FRIENDLY TOWN consists of a two-week stay in the suburbs by the children of a family from the Lincoln Park-Lakeview areas of the city.

The children, ages 6-13, live and play with the children of the suburban family while enjoying life in the suburbs.

Parents are asked to treat the children as they would treat their own.

There will be three two-week sessions during which families may participate. They are July 12-26, July 26-Aug. 9, and Aug. 9-23.

"We are hoping to have picnics again this year for the three sessions," said Mrs. Robert Jacobson, of 570 Oak St. "During the session with the largest number of participants an ecumenical church service will be held," she added.

MRS. JACOBSON, who participated in the program in 1968, said about 30 Elk Grove families opened their homes to inner city children last summer. It was the first time the program was held in town.

Coordinating the program is Dr. Frank Schulze, of 429 Lilac Lane. Aiding Dr. Schulze are Dr. Donald Froehlke, and Rev. John Rasses of Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church.

'Scare' Sex Flyers Not in Context

A Herald check of "scare" material being circulated in the suburban area using excerpts from sex education material reportedly in use in the San Francisco School district reveals that the items presented were taken out of context.

"The fact that the near-identical flyer appears in widely scattered areas appears to indicate that a well organized and financed group on the national level is triggering a movement," said George Canrinus, coordinator of health, physical education, athletics and recreation for the San Francisco Unified School District.

The two-page pamphlet, circulated locally throughout Dist. 21, has been widely circulated in San Francisco as well as in other parts of the country, Canrinus said.

"WE HAVE observed that in each case the format and content is practically identical, except for the differences in the names of local school members and the local organization sponsoring the 'anti' campaign," Canrinus told the Herald.

The document being circulated in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, is "almost entirely out of context, irrelevant, or untrue" said Canrinus.

Canrinus refuted statements in the pamphlet point-by-point for the Herald.

Edward Kemmett, president of the San Francisco School Board, and one of the two members voting against the Health and Family Life curriculum has expressed disapproval of the pamphlet, which quotes him, according to Canrinus.

Adolfo de Urioste, the other dissenter who is described as casting a "no" vote, only opposed the K-3 program, not the fourth-through-twelfth-grade program, he said.

The slides taken from the Time-Life Corp. filmstrip, "How Babies are Made," were among 40 slides depicting plant and animal reproduction. The picture of a couple in bed was not used in the San Francisco schools, although it is used in the pamphlet now being circulated in this area.

"WE DID NOT purchase additional copies of 'How Babies are Made' because of a price increase and because other aids were preferred by our teachers," Canrinus said.

The book from which quotes are excerpted is "A Doctor Talks to Five to Eight-Year-Olds," Budlong Press, Chicago, and is "a reference recommended by many medical authorities, including our Medical Society, Canrinus stated.

The pamphlet quotes extensively from a television program, "The Time of Your Life," saying this is health and family life education for intermediate prepared by BRITE for KQED Instructional Television Service, Grades four, five and six. This series is produced by the educational TV station, not by the school department, said Canrinus.

"Evaluations indicate that from 85 to 95 per cent of parents who have seen the entire 15 programs approve of it for the upper elementary grades," he said.

HOWEVER, he continued, "Our district has deleted this aid from our guide because we prefer to recommend aids which teachers can use at the most appropriate time, rather than be bound by the rigidity of a TV schedule."

The quotations used in the "scare" pamphlet are taken from the teacher's guide, distributed by the producer of the TV programs.

"These quotations are correct," Canrinus said. "It should be kept in mind that the guide is a publication for experienced and trained teachers, most of whom use discussion techniques in subjects."

Pupils Will Compete In Track, Field Meet

The meet will begin at 10 a.m. Competition will be held in running, the standing broad jump, timed sit-ups and other events.

A FEW OF the books purchased by the Elk Grove Library as a result of a $100 donation by Masque and Staff theater group are examined by Mrs. Evelyn Schmidt, librarian, and Robert Johnson, president of the local theater group.

Library Gets Gift

A gift of $100 for the purchase of books on or about the theater and related activities has been presented to the Elk Grove Village Public Library by the Masque and Staff community theater organization.

It was the second such gift presented to the library by the theater group. A similar contribution was made several years ago.

Also given, in connection with the current gift, was a collection of about 100 play books accumulated by the group's various play-reading committees over the last several years. The play books will be bound in hard covers and will be generally available to library users.

REPRESENTATIVE OF THE titles acquired by the library with the most recent $100 gift are "The Price" by Arthur Miller, "Theater in the Round," "Best Short Plays of the World Theater," "Complete Book of Children's Theater," "Stories of Gilbert and Sullivan Operas," "Costumes for School Plays," "Stage Properties and How to Make Them" and "Play Production for Young People."

Simon: Reach Out

by TOM WELLMAN

Paul Simon, lieutenant governor of Illinois, told a crowd of about 800 graduates, parents and teachers Sunday at St. Viator High School to "reach out" to the surrounding community and world.

Simon, a Democrat serving in the second highest elected state position under a Republican governor, told his audience, "I hope you'll not be afraid to reach out to the people in places like Pope County, Illinois."

Pope County, on the southern edge of the state, is an all-white, economically depressed area. Simon said that many public officials have not been paid or have been living on subsistence incomes for as long as eight months.

"The people there think they are forgotten. If this is one nation indivisible, there can be no forgotten people."

SIMON, WHO looks like a determined Sunday school teacher at first glance, stood ramrod straight while addressing the commencement audience. He spoke quietly and forcefully as he explained that reaching out involves touching also the people of East St. Louis andt he south side of Chicago.

Simon admitted at the beginning of his speech that the valedictory address by Herbert J. Klein, senior class president, was "as fine a valedictory as I've heard."

Klein, speaking abruptly at first, opened his speech, "We are the last generation. The height of man's accomplishment. We will not live to see our grandchildren — we will not have any. For there will be no world for them to live in."

He said it would have been easier to have spoken in "sentimental platitudes" about his four years at St. Viator.

"There is no longer any time for such trivia. Hiroshima made sure of that. And Watts. And Auschwitz. And California State. Man has long been dying in spirit. Now he is facing physical death on a large scale and quite possibly extinction, be it through hermonuclear war, environmental pollution, over population and starvation . .

"IN THE PAST we could run or hide and ignore. Now the end confronts us like a mad-hungry dog. Either man's spirit must be reborn or his body will die."

"Either we will be remembered as the generation that saved humanity or we will not be remembered at all. There will be none left to remember."

He urged his audience to act realistically, and he told his fellow students that "one person — each of us — can shape history." The, he concluded:

"Tomorrow can be the end of all which man has accomplis'ed, or tomorrow we can journey to the stars, but our journeys into space are as nothing if we cannot look with love into another man's eyes and call him brother."

The audience applauded, Simon followed with his speech, and 225 seniors were presented with their diplomas.

After the commencement, Klein was congratulated by Simon. Klein said it had taken him four days to write his address, but he revised it even on the way over to St. Viator's auditorium Sunday afternoon.

2 Hurt in Crash

Two passengers received bumps and cuts Tuesday in an accident on the south side of Dundee Road just west of Cedar Lane in Wheeling.

George Schumacher, 56, of Morton Grove was charged with failure to reduce speed at a stop sign. Injured were Colleene Stephens, 33, and Michele Stephens, 5, both passengers in a car driven by Russell W. Stephens, 18, of 21 St. Armand Ct., Wheeling.

Damage resulting from the accident was $250 to the front of Schumacher's car, and $200 to the car driven by Stephens. A June 24 court date was set in Arlington Heights District Court.

After 10 Years, Church Looks Into the Future

As St. Nicholas Church in Elk Grove Village celebrated its 10th anniversary Sunday, the eyes of the parish were trained on the future. More than 100 parishioners were present to adopt a five-year plan with new goals.

St. Nicholas plans to keep pace with the growth of the village. Thus, facilities must accommodate an enlarged membership. To better use the facilities and serve the community a pre-school is planned.

GROUNDS IMPROVEMENTS will also be made within the next five years, especially on the drive and parking facilities.

Final goal of the plan is to enable the parish to fulfill all the requirements of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago and to leave its present mission status and become an independent parish.

Films Join Books at Library

With a new collection of 8-millimeter films, the Elk Grove Village Public Library adds a new dimension to its scope of library services.

The initial purchase of 74 films includes historical and sports, documentaries, travel, biography and excerpts from Hollywood film classics. Although many of the films have been edited from full-length educational and theatrical films, there are some subjects not readily available in 16-millimeter films.

EVELYN Schmidt, librarian, said there has been "great demand for 8-millimeter films because many people don't own the more expensive 16-millimeter sound projectors."

The 8-millimeter films can be checked out on a regular adult borrower's card for one week. They will not be booked for particular dates but will be checked out on a first-come, first-served basis.

Determined to Serve Handicapped Children

by MARY SCHLOTT

John Wightman, new director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO), will be the man on the firing line next year as area schools stretch to the state-mandated requirement that an adequate education be provided for every child — including those with physical, mental or emotional handicaps.

To an interviewer, he gives every indication of having the determination to do the job and knowing how to do it.

WIGHTMAN SAYS his biggest assets in needs of the area's handicapped children are foundations that were laid before he came:

—The commitment of every one of the 10 area superintendents to meet those children's needs.

—The solid services already developed by Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Rolling Meadows; Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Barrington, and the Northwest Community Mental Health clinic.

—The increased tendency of parents of handicapped children to support, through organizations like Deaf Parents Unlimited and COULD — the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities, each other and the schools.

The NSSEO is a joint agreement, providing special education classes for children in High School Districts 211 and 214 and their feeder elementary districts in Wheeling, Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships.

BEGINNING THIS summer it will come under the supervision of the new lay-controlled board of the Northwest Education Cooperative.

Wightman says the link is logical. "Like the co-op, we are here because the school districts believe there are some services they need that they could not afford or make maximum use of alone."

Next year, the area's 10 school districts, through the NSSEO, will offer improved services to two types of handicapped children — the trainable mentally handicapped and the physically crippled.

Until now, crippled children were sent to school districts outside the area — in Elgin, Maine and Niles townships and Lake County.

Next fall, NSSEO will open its own class for physically handicapped children. An initial survey of what the local needs are showed, Wightman said, that, "we have handicapped children coming out of the woodwork. You'd be surprised how many pre-school handicapped are sitting at home with parents who are waiting until they are school age to enroll them."

A SCHOOL DISTRICT needs advance warning to meet the more complicated demands of special education classes, which need special teachers, special buses and different equipment and supplies.

NSSEO will take bids this fall on a new classroom building for its trainable mentally handicapped children. Wightman hopes to have that building ready for classes in September, 1970, which means the contractor will have to hump.

The building will be located on a site NSSEO has purchased at 500 South Plum Grove Road, Palatine. Wightman expects to have a first-year enrollment of 145 children, and it will eventually house 300.

Wightman says similar California schools for trainable mentally handicapped children all have indoor swimming pools used year-around by handicapped children and adults. He says such a facility is fully justified in terms of use, because of the exercise and therapy it provides.

Looking ahead, he would like to see the TMH building in Palatine offer summer play care for handicapped children, evening recreation and even weekend or vacation care for the handicapped children whose parents may have never before been able to get away for a much-needed break.

WIGHTMAN GIVES Countryside and Clearbrook the full credit for filling the gap the public schools were not ready to assume before.

He made the point that this was not only better for the children, but more economical for the taxpayers. "They were able to keep these children out of state institutions, which are not only dreadful, but a terrible cost. In California it costs $2,400 to keep a child in a state mental institution. It costs us less than half that to keep him in his community where he can be productive and feel that he is important to someone besides."

With the public schools taking over education of all trainable mentally handicapped children of school age, Clearbrook and Countryside will continue to serve the area. They will provide pre-school children's classes, give assistance to children whose mental deficiencies are only a part of the problem, and offer sheltered employment for mentally handicapped adolescents and adults.

WIGHTMAN SAYS there is one type of handicapped child that NSSEO will offer little for next year, though it may by 1971. This is the disturbed child who may be so disruptive in the classroom that the school, in effect, throws up its hands.

NSSEO will have four apersonality adjustment classes next fall, all in Elk Grove Dist. 59, and a number of other children will get help through the Diagnostic Learning Center (DLC) being absorbed this fall by the NSSEO.

Wightman thinks that the Diagnostic Learning Center's approach of pinpointing a difficult child's special needs and working cooperatively with the child, his parents and his regular teacher to help him is in the long run the right approach to take.

"Someday this will be the most sought after program in the joint agreement," Wightman predicts. "The DLC will become the critical staff force for helping children with emotional problems."

But getting that launched on other than a minimal scale will take a year. In the meantime, Wightman is fully cognizant that he will be getting heat from parents whose children are in trouble. And he can see their point.

"When we exclude a child from public school we literally say that we have not done our job," he says. Then he shrugs

"But to build a new program takes time."

ELOQUENT WHEN talking of the responsibility to educate every child, new area special education director John Wightman encourages parents of handicapped children to band together to help each other and the schools.

The Way We See It

A Modern 'Snakepit'?

"Snakepit" is the word most popularly used to describe the conditions reported at the two state mental hospitals in Cook County.

If those conditions even approach the wretched level detailed by State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan, "snakepit" is a complimentary description

Hanrahan, in a one-and-a-half month investigation at Chicago State Hospital and Tinley Park Center, turned up evidence of abuses so abysmal that they smack of Middle Age horror.

To quote from the report:

"All varieties of crime were discovered to have occurred at both institutions, including murder, arson, rape, prostitution, aggravated battery, theft, narcotics, traffic and gambling."

Again

"Attacks by patients on female employees and other patients are such a common daily occurrence that they are practically disregarded."

Further, Hanrahan charged, patients have had little trouble in obtaining liquor, drugs, matches, knives, razor blades, guns, baseball bats, iron pipes, clubs and matches.

The list of atrocities said to have occurred within the two institutions is appalling. They include the burning to death of a 46-year old woman patient by three men because she wouldn't submit to acts of prostitution; the fatal beating by security guards of a 44-year old man who sought to commit himself voluntarily; the scalding to death of a 78-year old man — paralyzed and in a wheel chair — in a 140-degree shower into which he had been pushed by a psychiatric aid.

What is more appalling is that not just patients — but institution employees as well — have been alleged to be part of the horror.

Of the security forces, Hanrahan said he found them to be understaffed, poorly trained, inexperienced, unqualified and underpaid, and 82 past and present employees at Tinley Park have criminal records including murder, manslaughter, armed robbery and assault and battery.

Patients — said the report — have been allowed to leave the grounds freely, being marked discharged if they don't turn up, and security forces are not required to report crimes to police.

Compounding all this — according to Hanrahan — is that there is no separation of acute from chronic patients, no separation of mild from violent, no separation of male from female. Further, there is ample evidence that thousands of elderly persons who would be better treated in nursing homes have been dumped into the mental hospitals.

What is to be done?

Hanrahan is already taking action, and we commend him for that. Immediately, he's moving for grand jury action in eight criminal cases involving both patients and employees, to reap some punishment for acts already charged.

Dr. Hyman Pomp, superintendent at Chicago State, has been removed from his position.

Hanrahan has proposed 23 recommendations for major improvements at the two hospitals, including physical facilities, personnel, patient care and the reporting of criminal and unusual acts. It must be approved by the General Assembly.

Action is already being taken by legislators on bills to get elderly patients out of the mental hospitals and into private nursing facilities.

All this will help.

But what of the State Department of Mental Health, ultimately responsible for everything that goes on inside the state's mental institutions? An investigation of the department may well be in order, if conditions have indeed been allowed to get so horrendous, and it finally takes a county state's attorney to blow the whistle.

And what of the apathetic public, still not able to raise itself from the indifference which concludes that the best thing to do with our mentally ill is to lock them away?

Where've You Been, Old 349?

by JAMES VESELY

The steady stream of traffic was like a continuous band of metal last Sunday on Wisconsin's I-90. Memorial Day celebrants poured out of their vacation cabins and roared back to the Chicago metropolitan area, wondering if it was all worth it.

Somewhere near Baraboo, a Greyhound bus whooshed by, chasing a Volkswagen like a tuna after a silvery minnow.

The bus was number 349, a double deck job with the typical rolling gait of its breed.

"Old Number 349," I thought, "so we meet again."

I don't often spend my time musing over something as smelly and dirty as a bus, but this bus and I have shared many adventures.

IT STARTED LONG ago when I used to earn my living renting pillows at the downtown terminal. A busload of passengers would roll in from some exotic port such as Omaha. Those of us employed by the Gordon Pillow Service would rush out to pick up the pillows the customers had used for the past 33 hours.

Next, with fresh casings on them, the pillows were rented to passengers heading out of Chicago.

It was a good life, being a pillow renter. I always had money in my jeans and there was a feeling of camraderie among our little band.

With hats tilted at a rakish angle, we would walk through the aisles of the outgoing buses, renting pillows to those passengers sentenced to ride a Greyhound coast to coast.

It was in these pleasant surroundings that I first met Number 349.

SHE WAS A trim looking vehicle, almost factory new. The bus driver, only one grade lower than a jet pilot in dash, spun her around into a boarding dock and stopped her a fraction of an inch from a 16-foot plate glass window.

As the driver dismounted, he jerked his thumb over his shoulder to Number 349. "She's all yours, kid," he says.

As I entered the gloom of the bus, the paraphernalia of thousands of hard miles lay slumbering underfoot.

A GAUDY PAMPHLET telling of the thrills awaiting visitors at South Dakota's Reptile Gardens sat coiled next to a woman's left glove.

Down the aisle of that bus stretched the bits and pieces of things remembered from travelers' stops across the continent.

Outside the windows of this silent bus was San Francisco Bay and New Orleans. Under the heavy wheels was the New Jersey Turnpike. Reflected in the rear view mirror was the Grand Tetons, the sun just catching the mountain tops.

Sombreros and derbies, cowboy boots and tennis shoes. All of them rode that roaring bus on some errand.

High livers and low down cheats shared a sardine can from Nashville to the horizon. They talked and laughed together or shared a rainstorm in silence.

NUMBER 349 SLIDES down the road puffing black smoke like a coal engine. Inside are the people who count the miles with relief or sadness, bound for a person or a place which will change their lives.

I pulled the pillows off of the bus and walked away. A maintenance man began washing down her sides, the way you see them wash elephants in the zoo.

But she was dirty again last Sunday as she traveled through Wisconsin woodland down I-90. Rolling home.

Palatine Today

A Few Did Care, And Very Deeply

by ED MURNANE

Saturday, May 31, was a much more meaningful Memorial Day in Palatine Township than was Friday

Although the annual Memorial Day parades and tributes to the dead were held on schedule Friday, and the sparkling new Rolling Meadows City Hall was dedicated amid a blue sky and thousands of brightly colored balloons, the real heart of the community didn't beat until Saturday

That was when two of Palatine Township's young men were remembered. Two boys — both in their teens — who died many years before they should have, but whose memories will be preserved because of the hearts of their friends and relatives.

Only a handful of people gathered at the newly acquired Palatine Township Youth Organization teen center Saturday morning for the dedication ceremonies there.

BUT THAT didn't detract from the meaning of the event. Nor did the rain that began to fall just as the National Anthem was being played and the American Legion slowly raised an American flag in honor of David B. Arnold, 19, a Vietnam war casualty.

The Arnold family, friends and others stood in the rain as the flag inched its way to the top of the standard. The bugler, a Palatine High School student, had beads of rain dripping from himself and his horn as he reached the final high notes in the Star Spangled Banner without cracking.

David Arnold's memory will be preserved at the teen center through the flag and flag staff which his parents are largely responsible for. When David was killed earlier this year, his parents asked that donations be made to the youth organization rather than for flowers.

They themselves made a sizable donation to the organization in the hope that the needs of the teens in the area would be closer to fulfillment because of their son.

SATURDAY, the flag and staff were dedicated to David Arnold before about 30 people who cared.

About a mile south of the teen center, a two-mile long line of cars waited to enter the Palatine village dump.

Saturday's second dedication was in honor of Stephen M. Rose, a 14-year-old Palatine High School freshman who died following football practice in 1967. The Salt Creek Park District paid tribute to Stephen by renaming their North Park for him.

Stephen was described as an "average boy who was a joy to his parents, his friends and his neighbors."

BY DEDICATING the park to Stephen, the park commissioners paid tribute to every teen who is "just an average boy."

Stephen Rose had friends in Palatine, where he lived and was to go to high school, and in Rolling Meadows, where he attended elementary school.

Yet only about 50 people turned out for the dedication — and most of them were family and park officials.

David Arnold, who died as a hero, and Stephen Rose, who was just a good kid, were remembered Saturday.

It proves that the community does indeed have a heart. But it's beating very faintly.

The Fence Post

Protest Anti-Truck Rules

We wish to call attention to, and protest, the sudden enforcement of an obscure village ordinance prohibiting parking a truck in a residential driveway. We have been parking our pickup in the driveway of our house for over a year. Then yesterday morning, without warning, we found a $5 ticket on the window for violating this ordinance.

We are outraged. This pickup is our only means of transportation it is not a commercial vehicle. It is new (1968), clean, and well-kept, more so than many cars. It is no heavier, dirtier, nor noisier than a large car. We have no garage; it is illegal to park a vehicle overnight on the street; and now we find it is illegal to park in our own driveway. Just what are we supposed to do with our vehicle?

Perhaps there are some whose sensibilities are offended by the sight of a pickup truck. As long as our vehicle is infringing on no one else's personal rights, those people have no right, nor does the village, to dictate what kind of vehicle we may park on our own private personal property.

There may be some whose sensibilities are offended by any car older than 1966. Shall we prohibit parking used cars in driveways? Of course not. It makes no more sense than prohibiting pickups in driveways.

We feel this is an infringement of our personal rights and privileges as law-abiding, taxpaying citizens, and we protest strongly.

Painful, But Good For You

by MARY DRESSER

House Bill 1241 takes away the homeowner's freedom the same way a vaccination takes away the individual's freedom to develop smallpox

The bill, now pending before the Illinois Senate, would permit municipalities to annex unincorporated areas by ordinance

Opponents of HB 1241 say it takes away their freedom to choose which municipality they will join. It will also cost them money, they claim, because they will have to pay to connect to municipal services such as water and sewers

Self-determination is the big rallying cry, and these homeowners are insisting their individual freedoms are in jeopardy.

IN REALITY, THEIR freedom to control their own destiny is in jeopardy because they live in unincorporated areas and not because they may be annexed.

Annexation to a municipality is a protection to the homeowner and his property values

As a resident of a municipality, he has the power to vote for his representatives.

Those representatives are charged with protecting his interests and he can at any time challenge their stewardship. He also has the right to protest before village board, plan commissions and zoning boards

Democratic representation is as close to him as his local village hall

AS A HOMEOWNER in a municipality, his neighborhood is protected by the ordinances his representatives approve.

An unscrupulous developer or commercial interest can be regulated by a municipality

The only zoning protection for unincorporated areas is the Cook County Zoning Board.

So far Cook County has done a slipshod job of policing the unincorporated areas.

In unincorporated areas, apartments and commercial buildings are springing up like weeds and in many cases they may turn out to be just as noxious.

Slums of the future are being built in the unincorporated areas surrounding municipalities.

THE PEOPLE WHO insist on their individual freedom of ownership could, tomorrow, have an industrial complex on their doorstep — an unpoliced and unregulated industrial complex. Also, the taxes to be gained from these possible industrial complexes will not flow into village coffers to provide services for homeowners.

To analyze the effect of any proposed legislation, it is good to note which group supports it and which group opposes it.

Besides the scattered, but vocal, homeowners' groups in unincorporated areas, the big opponent of HB 1241 is the Illinois Manufacturer's Association. The association wants things to stay as they are. There is more money in building commercial and industrial complexes in unincorporated areas than in incorporated areas.

SUPPORTING THE bill are planners, villages concerned with orderly growth on their borders, and the Governor of Illinois, who has a certain antipathy toward the Cook County Zoning Board.

It must be admitted it will cost money for unincorporated areas to come into municipalities.

However, it also costs money to have your children vaccinated. You pay the money for the protection you receive.

'Thank You' To All Who Helped

On behalf of my mother, Mrs. Mary A. Lavery, I wish to express my deep appreciation and gratitude to the men of the Rolling Meadows police and fire departments for their prompt, courteous and above all efficient professional response in answer to my call for help on the night of May 22.

Within minutes of my call, they arrived and took charge in such a manner that she was not overly alarmed and took action that I believe was instrumental in reducing further medical complications and in saving her life.

Their profound concern served to lessen my own anxiety. My respect for, and observance of, the laws that they are sworn to enforce is the best way that I know of to show my continued gratitude.

I ALSO WISH to thank the Northwest Community Hospital emergency staff, the Army ambulance personnel (names unknown) who later transferred her via Army ambulance to the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, and also to my neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. George Berg and Mr. and Mrs. Cliff McCauley.

Mrs. Lavery, who will be 88 next month, while still on the serious list at Great Lakes Naval Hospital, Ward 10 East, is improving. Regardless of what the final decision of our Lord in Heaven may be, all who extended a helping hand, without reservations have my deepest gratitude and appreciation.

$25,000 Added Chicagoan Heads Fourth Racing Week

Mrs. Dorothy Rigney's Fast Hilarious, one of the nation's fastest three-year-olds for as far as he can carry his blazing speed, takes the spotlight again in next Saturday's $25,000 added Chicagoan as Balmoral climaxes its next-to-last week of thoroughbred sport at Arlington Park.

The seven furlongs Chicagoan is a holdover from last year's season and shares the fourth week limelight with Wednesday's inaugural running of the $15,000 added Balmoral Lassie, a five furlongs dash for two-year-old fillies.

There are no less than 24 nominations for the Lassie, including several recent winners at the meeting, while at least 17 of the country's top sprinting three-year-olds had been named for the Chicagoan.

LAST TIME Balmoral railbirds saw Fast Hilarious in action the striking son of Hilarious-Fast Cookie galloped off with the Marshall Field Memorial, reporting home easily by 4½ lengths in a blistering 1:08 3-5, equalling the five-year-old track record for the distance.

In that one, the multiple stakes hero, who actually broke his maiden at Arlington Park last summer, dogged the quick early pace of C. R. Nowicke's Get Araction, collared that one in midstretch, scoring as jockey Earlie Fires elected.

Mr. and Mrs. V. K. Kanowsky's California invader, the well-regarded, Fleet Allied was three lengths back in third and this sophomore too is eligible for the longer Chicagoan.

RACING SECRETARY Ed McKinsey hopes for several new challengers for Fast Hilarious, most noteworthy of whom could be Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Roberts' Traffic Mark, remembered in this area for his two-year-old efforts last season.

Traffic Mark earned a strong degree of fame this spring when he accounted for the Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn, later settled for secondary honors in the coveted Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland.

Jones Jr-Benjamin III's Walking Stick, who wound up fifth to Fast Hilarious in the Marshall Field, also will be back Saturday. Forest H. Lindsay's Chief Sun Dance, Win View Farm's King Fulcrum, Ken Opstein's Two Bobbs and Mrs. Howard B. Noonan's Shiek of Bagdad also are nominated for the weekend sprint.

LISTED PROMINENTLY among the 21 Lassie nominees are E. W. Kuntze's Bzz-Bzz, who was scheduled to make her Balmoral bow Wednesday. The spunky daughter of Mr. Brick won the $15,000 added Florida Stallion STAKES IN April at Gulfstream.

Scrimmage Lines

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

A VISITOR to the northwest suburbs on a Thursday afternoon in the fall drove past a local high school football field and after seeing a seating capacity of about 2,000, remarked to his passenger:

"Where do they put all the people at the football games around here?"

To which the passenger replied, "Come around Saturday and find out."

Sure enough, the visitor attended the local football game that Saturday. And to his amazement the 2,000 seats were only half full. "It's a shame," he said. "I've never been to a high school game with less than 4,000 in the stands. I thought that in an area this large that there would be at least that many people at the game."

The 1968-69 school year is rapidly coming to a close and already the high school athletic year is completed. As the visitor looks back on the year, what stands out in his mind most is the lack of attendance at high school athletic events.

Like the visitor said, "It's a real shame."

The Mid-Suburban League encompasses an area which includes more than 120,000 people. One has to think how many of the 120,000 actually saw a high school athletic event. About 20,000 sounds right.

One excuse given for the lack of attendance is that there is not too much to see as far as the caliber of play is concerned. This is absurd since the 1968-69 year saw record performances in each and every sport.

Actually, the lack of attendance can be traced to a scarcity of interest from not only individuals but from the communities, also.

The northwest suburbs have to have the most disinterested communities among those which have high school athletics.

Think back. How many posters concerning upcoming events did you see in store windows? How many merchants helped the school by selling tickets? How many parades were held to honor the athletes? Very few.

How about individuals? Of course, not everyone is interested in sports. But what of those who have sons, nephews, grandsons, brothers and friends competing in high school athletics? Ask yourself. How many times did you take the effort to watch your son, nephew, grandson, brother or friend play? You may not have an interest in sports, but don't you have interest in the young men in the area?

Many of the local schools competed in the Palatine Regional basketball tournament. The tournament was sold out every night. But it was disheartening to hear, "Who is that No. 32?" Or, "who coaches that team." Many of those attending the tournament did not know the players and coaches on their own local team . . . because they had not attended a regular season game all year.

The parents expect their children to behave as adults. The parents expect high school students to be mature, accept responsibility, to conduct themselves properly. The parents want the students to be young adults.

But what happens when the student wants the parent to come to the student's level for a change? What happens when the student says, "I've tried to be a young adult. I've tried to live on your level. I've taken an interest in being a part of the community. Now how about taking an interest in me and come to the game?" Many adults and parents say, "I have a bridge game that night." Or, "I'm too tired." Or, "I've got too many things to do."

This is not to say that the parents in this area do not love their children. The exact opposite is true. The parents assuredly work long hours to support their children. They love their children. But sometimes they forget to take a little interest.

As parents and adults, you are concerned about the turmoil among the youth in America. But do you realize how very little turmoil there is?

How many high school students do you talk to in a day? Perhaps your own children, yes. But how many more?

And the high school students, how many adults do they talk to in a day? They have their teachers and parents, but few others.

This is where we get that awful term — the generation gap. Students and adults have few meeting grounds in which to close the gap.

Remember, adults, these young people are making an effort to be young adults. Are you making any effort to show interest in the kids?

Why haven't you gotten out to a high school event? Why not talk to these kids? This world of the young people is not full of dopies, junkies and rumdums. There are good kids, plenty of good kids. You ought to take the effort to know them.

With the school year ending, you have missed a great opportunity. But there is always next year. Get down to a game next fall. Talk to the kids in the stands. Listen to them speak . . . they're respectful. Talk to the kids . . . they will listen.

The kids today get a charge out of speaking to adults. The kids have keen and sharp minds. They like to exchange thoughts and ideas. They know that adults have much to offer as far as ideas are concerned. And the kids feel that they have something to offer the adults.

After a game, get down on the field, the court or whatever. Talk to the athletes. The athletes are young men. They are men. They are like you, adults . . . they have worked hard to achieve something.

This thing called the generation gap can be brought together. All it takes is a little effort on both sides. Take your son and daughter to a game; watch your son compete. Before you know it you both will have something in common. If you do, the generation gap between you and your son and daughter will have begun to be bridged.

Add Up to Banner Lion Year

Spirit, Hustle, Ability

by CHUCK WILLOUR

For the first few weeks of the St. Viator varsity baseball season, it looked like Coach Pat Mahoney's Irish luck had deserted him. After seeing their first two games of the year washed out of the schedule, the Lions then proceeded to lose the first four games they played, win two and then lose another.

Things were looking bleak for the Lion diamond men, and Mahoney's usual Irish smile was displaced by an old country scowl.

But then Mahoney's guardian leprechaun, who had been frolicking in the woods somewhere, decided that it was time he started looking out for his own. "Faith and begorrah," he said in consternation, "while I've been out here having meself a grand ol' time, me boys have been bounced around like a Black and Tan in a Dublin pub!"

One in a series of reviews of varsity baseball seasons at high schools in the Paddock Publications circulation area.

OF COURSE, YOU know the rest of the story. Once Coach Mahoney's private elfin made an appearance on the Viator field, the Lions caught fire and proceeded to win 10 of their next 11 league games and cop a share of the Chicagoland Prep League diamond crown with a 11-3 CPL mark. Overall, the Lion posted a proud 14-7 record.

Ah, the power that the wee folk have...

What's that? You don't believe in leprechauns?

Well, if you don't believe in leprechauns, then how about such things as spirit and hustle and good attitude, plus a lot of solid ability — mixed in with just a smidgeon of Irish luck?

FOR THE LIONS had all of that and more. At the beginning of the year, Coach Mahoney believed that these factors were going to figure strongly into the Lion diamond season: "These boys are fine athletes," he said, "with great attitude. They want to win and they will."

And although it took a little while for that spirit to turn itself into victories, once the Lions started on their winning ways, Mahoney was proven right.

The key to the season, Mahoney believed before the season began, was the development of his underclass pitchers. Returning from the season before was all-CPL hurler Mark Walinski, but one man can't pitch every game. And again the Viator mentor was proven right when sophomore Mike Pettenuzzo turned in a stellar year on the mound with a 4-1 pitching record to complement Walinski's 6-1 mark.

GIVING A VALUABLE hand were chuckers Mark Delaney with a 1-2 record, Barry Clark also at 1-2, Steve Snyder with a 1-1 record, and John Merges with a 1-0 record.

Pettenuzzo also caught when he wasn't on the mound, and in addition he was the team's most powerful bat, pounding out 35 hits in 78 at bats for a team high batting average of .446, while driving in 26 runs. At the spring awards banquet, he was named St. Viator's Most Valuable Player.

But again, he had help. Right behind Pettenuzzo in the batting column was first baseman Mike O'Donnell, whose 22 hits and 14 RBI's belied the fact that he was the eighth and ssometimes ninth man in the Viator lineup. On the year, "O.D." hit a sizzling .349.

MARK ABINANTI WAS another invaluable performer for Coach Mahoney, hitting .339 on the year while playing a strong center field for the Lions. And the list just keeps on growing: shortstop Jack Brawley batted .338 on the season; left fielder Ken Preski swung the bat at a .284 clip; third baseman Steve Smith cracked out a .256 average; Steve Ostermann batted at a .286 rate; and Jim Hynes posted a .215 average.

As a team the Lions compiled some amazing statistics, hitting .296 on the year, reaching first base more than 50 per cent of the time they sent men to the plate. In all, they scored 136 runs, and seven more were negated when the Lions played Wheeling, owned a 7-3 lead, and then saw rain wash away a brilliant game.

It was a good year for St. Viator, maybe even a great year. The Lions won only one more game than they did last year, 13, but they didn't lose nearly as many — 7 losses this season compared to last year's 14.

THE ONLY MAR ON the season was the last game of the year when Viator fell to a powerful Forest View club, 11-7 in the Falcon-hosted district tournament.

But Coach Mahoney wasn't too disappointed that his team was unable to play its way into the state finals; he couldn't say anything bad about the way his club played that day. "The way I look at it," he says, "is it was a team loss. All through the year we had been winning team victories, every boy had a part in every game we played. This was just one of those games where each boy had a part in us losing.

"But," he added, "I have to say that I'm very happy with the way things turned out. We tied St. George for the Chicagoland Prep League championship, we played well in our non-conference games against local teams, and I think we developed enough talent among our underclassmen this year so that St. Viator should be a real power for the next couple of years."

BEARING OUT HIS words is the fact that only four starters are graduating: Walinski, Brawley, Hynes and Preski. Coming back to terrorize the CPL with their batting and fielding are such fellows as O'Donnell, Smith, Pettenuzzo, Abinanti, Ostermann and Larry Quinnett.

With a nucleus like that, plus a group of sophomores coming up from a CPL title year, all the Lions need next year for another great season is a little bit of that Irish luck mixed in with their hustle and spirit.

Western Open Championship Unique in Its Contribution

The Western Open golf championship, second oldest competition in American golf, is unique in its goal, the furtherance of the world-famed Evans Scholars Foundation.

This outstanding charity is recognized today as sport's No. 1 contribution to the field of education.

The 66th Western Open will be played June 5-8 at Midlothian CC, and as the only Chicago event on the PGA tour will feature an outstanding field topped by Jack Nicklaus, defending champion, who also won in 1967.

Proceeds from this championship go to the scholarship program which, like the Western Open, is sponsored by the Western Golf Association, founded in 1899.

Chick Evans, veteran Chicago amateur golfer and winner of the Western Open in 1910, is the father of the caddie-scholarship program which began in 1930. A total of 2,695 Evans Scholars have been appointed, with 710 currently in college attending 28 universities across the nation.

This "tournament with a purpose" has a list of champions which reads like a Who's Who in Golf. Started in 1899, the Western Open is one of the game's oldest and most honored championships.

Since the Western became a Chicago fixture in 1962, the winners have been Jacky Cupit, Arnold Palmer, Chichi Rodriguez, Billy Casper twice, and Nicklaus.

The giants of golf have sought and captured the coveted Western Open crown, but the reign of Walter Hagen with a record of five titles and as many second places between 1916 and 1932 was dominant.

It was at Midlothian in 1914 that Hagen won his first national championship, downing Chick Evans by a single stroke for victory in the U.S. Open.

Willie Anderson, Alex Smith, MacDonald Smith, Chick Evans and Jim Barnes were among Hagen's predecessors in the Western, while his contemporaries included Bill Melhorn, Jock Hutchinson, Tommy Armour and Gene Sarazen.

After Hagen came such truly big names of golf such as Ralph Guldahl, Johnny Revolta, Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum and Cary Middlecoff.

Guldahl is the only golfer to win three successive Western Open titles, topping the fields in 1936, '37 and '38. Hogan in 1948 became the first golfer to win the "triple crown" of the USGA Open, PGA championship and Western Open.

Christian Scientists Meet

The power to bring concrete change that characterized the life of Jesus is still available, 10,000 Christian Scientists were told at the denomination's annual meeting today

"That same Christ-power is inexhaustibly present today, to be manifested in healing the world's ills just as directly as when Jesus was on earth — and just as radically," said Inman H. Douglass, chairman of the Christian Science Board of Directors. Douglass read the directors' annual message.

"What Can We Do for Our World?" is the theme that will be developed in a series of meetings and workshops continuing through Thursday.

Through the week, the need for healing of a wide range of social problems will be considered in depth. Filmed interviews on race relations, youth, underdevelopment, law and order, legal and judicial reform and international relations will be shown.

Erwin D Canham, editor in chief of the Christian Science Monitor; Howard Jones, former ambassador to Indonesia, and Alan Young are among Christian Scientists who will address meetings.

The board members will make plans to attend the national AAUW convention at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago, beginning June 16. They will also complete arrangements for orientation coffees, the first to be held June 24 in the home of Mrs. Charles Toot, Arlington Heights.

Any women graduates of an accredited college or university registered with the AAUW office in Washington, D.C. are welcome. They may call Mrs. Schaefer at 392-4839 for details.

CONGRATULATIONS went to Mrs. John Soderberg, right, president of Prospect Heights Women's Club, from Mrs. Thomas R. Houde, first vice president of the IFWC, after the club received an award for winning the state library contest sponsored by the GFWC. Mrs. Wilbur Schlag, library chairman of the club, accepted the award at the recent convention held in Chicago.

'Come to the Fair' at Countryside

All the sights and sounds of an old-fashioned country fair will fill the grounds at Countryside Center for the Handicapped this weekend. Both Saturday and Sunday afternoons from 1 to 6 there will be booths with games for young and old, a refreshment stand, and an array of home-baked goods on sale.

Countryside Fair will be held outdoors at the center for the handicapped on Shirley Road, Palatine. The public is invited to the benefit event. Proceeds will further the work that the Center is doing for children and adults who attend the school and take part in the workshop and in DOOR, Inc., the rehabilitation center in Wheeling.

GAMES FEATURED AT the Fair will be a fish pond, bean bags, cane and cat toss, a lollipop tree, the swisheroo, a teddy bear treat and pony rides

The refreshment stand will offer charcoal-broiled hamburgers and hot dogs, soft drinks and draft beer

James Nowlin of Palatine is chairman of the Fair, assisted by Mrs. Francis Hart and Thomas Donohue of Palatine, James Wallace and Edwin Lawlor of Barrington, Jack Halleck of Arlington Heights and Mrs. Donald Finney of Lake Zurich.

Several local clubs and organizations have offered to help with the booths. They include the Palatine Junior Woman's Club, Palatine Junior Chamber of Commerce, Palatine Lions Club, Palatine Kiwanis, Wheeling Lions Club and Barrington Junior Woman's Club.

Naked Look for Fall

If it's naked looking, it's in for fall 1969. Even the usually most conservative of Seventh Avenue's designers are baring backs to the hips, cutting out sides of late day and evening dresses to show the bosom in silhouette, opening up the midriff with such gimmicks as bold circles cut out of the fabric, and some keyhole cutouts in late day clothes even expose the navel.

Nursing Homes Lure

Nursing home costs are a fast-growing area of coverage for health insurance. The Health Insurance Institute says the coverage can range from 60 to 730 days, depending on the policy.

Time To Retire Old Cookware?

A recent nationwide survey of women has shown that a homemaker would sooner throw away her new hat than an old pot Women just can't seem to consign old cookware to the junk heap As each lady gets new ones she either hands down her old battered utensils or stores them away

It's probably about time you inspected your cookware storage cabinet, not only with an eye for making more space by retiring old pots and pans, but to see if a whole new set of matched aluminum cookware isn't definitely in order

When is a pot or pan ready to be replaced? Obviously, replacement time is at hand if the cookware has sprung a leak or lost its handle, also; if it has an uneven bottom. A battered bottom surface has poor contact with the heat and will burn or undercook food Dented covers which do not fit snugly also cause poor cooking. Loose and broken handles are dangerous Chipped, scorched interior surfaces are almost impossible to clean By discarding these worn utensils you are sprucing up your kitchen and giving your cooking a lift.

WHEN YOU SHOP for new cookware, shop carefully You will see more aluminum utensils than any other kind because aluminum conducts heat faster and more evenly than other materials commonly used for cookware. Good conductivity prevents "hot spots" to scorch foods or cold areas to undercook. Today's aluminum utensils also come in show-off porcelain colors, in everything from tea pots to roasters

Here's a tip on what you might do with an old skillet or pan that has seen the better days: fasten it to a tree as a bird feeding station

To Chicago Fair

Local artists and craftsmen who have succeeded in the keen competition for the 285 available spots plotted for the exhibitors in the playgrounds of the Ray School and the surrounding streets are Ingrid Ablett and Christl Hansen of Mount Prospect, and Margaret Lisa Berg of Bensenville. The 57th State Art Fair will be held June 7 and 8 from noon to dusk

Painters, sculptors, lithographers, jewelers, potters, weavers and glassmakers set up their exhibits for the two-day event, operated by a volunteer committee on a non-profit basis. The artists sell directly to the public.

Skirts Still Short

It looks like no change in hemline lengths for fall. Daytime and short cocktail dresses still ride three to five inches above the knees But several designers like the look of short day dresses or culottes with floor length coats, usually flared and belted.

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible

The regulations may increase the nation s cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans. Sen Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

Ask Party Abstention

PARIS — The French Communist Party leadership decided Monday night to ask its membership to abstain from the June 15 presidential election runoff between acting President Alain Poher and former Premier Georges Pompidou, who won most of Sunday's votes.

Jacques Duclos of the Communist Party finished third in the Sunday voting The Communist Party action came shortly after the French Socialist Party threw its support to Poher

Rain Cripples City

NEW YORK — A lightning-laced thunderstorm drenched Metropolitan New York yesterday with up to two inches of rain, crippling transportation used by hundreds of thousands of commuters and delaying the opening of stock exchanges

The rain began at 5:20 a.m., but subway service was still tied up late in the day. The weather bureau's electronic rain-measuring equipment was knocked out for the first time in history, and water was often waist deep in streets and subway tracks.

Kennedy Criticized

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen rebuked Sen. Edward Kennedy yesterday for his criticism of the strategy which led to the battle for Hamburger Hill in Vietnam

Dirksen told the Senate that Kennedy's charge that military commanders were "senseless and irresponsible" in undertaking such battles while peace negotiations were under way jolted his estimate of Kennedy's "wisdom and judgment."

Schaumburg High's Innovations Told

The responsibility of building Schaumburg High School from a freshman-sophomore school into a four-year school with a student body of 2,500 belongs to Carl Weimer, presently assistant principal of Palatine High School.

Weimer came to Dist. 21 in 1957 as a general science and biology teacher at Palatine, then became science department chairman.

Schaumburg will open in the middle of 1970-71, with many innovations.

The building will be comprised of three floors, with the lower floor built partially below ground. This, Weimer said, is due to the contour of the land, and will make the school appear somewhat smaller than three floors.

ON THE LOWER floor will be a music suite, kitchen, cafeteria, shops, art department, drafting, sewing and food department. The shops are planned so classes are together and the students are near them, and also for the convenience of night classes.

Rooms are grouped by departmental areas. It is felt that the building will have the best arranged administration and guidance facilities in the district.

On the first floor will be the administrative office and guidance center, with class space for math, business education, a science suite, the foreign language department and nurses' quarters.

The science suite, Weimer said, will have an adjoining corridor with one large storage area. The foreign language department will include a listening lab containing a console unit with tapes and ear phones. Teachers will be able to switch in for individual instruction.

On the second floor will be a large lecture room, seating 150. The room will have a projection screen and sound system. The school will have six small seminars, where teachers will be able to meet with students. Other students can meet in reading rooms, adding to Schaumburg's modern program of team teaching.

THIS CAN break down larger groups of students and give the student a better chance for individual instruction.

Weimer pointed out that the library will have a listening center to make that room a total learning center. The latest audio-visual equipment will be provided.

One area of the school will be undeveloped at the beginning, until Weimer and other school officials see the need for additional classes. This area will have electrical outlets and other necessities, and will be used for limited student activity until the need for classrooms arise.

Weimer said that interviews for teaching positions will take place during the next school year Counting special service personnel, the initial staff will include about 20 people, Weimer said

Many Schaumburg youngsters attend Conant High School, the largest of the three schools in Dist. 211 A number of

sophomores may be transferred to Schaumburg during their first year to alleviate the crowded Conant school

Officials anticipate that in two or three years Schaumburg High School will reach the 2,500-student-level as new homes are built in the area

THE HIGH school will have a full athletic program, although at the beginning, it will play a freshman schedule only. Weimer said the school is hoping to arrange an intramural program, in addition to the regular varsity schedule

The school will have a football field, two baseball fields, a track, practice fields, and possibly tennis courts If approved by voters and local government, space is provided for a swimming pool

A school gym, seating about 2,900, will be constructed, with an indoor circle for track

An interesting feature of the school, Weimer said, is an elevator, rarely found in a school. Although primarily for freight, it will provide students confined to a wheelchair a means of getting around the building

"It frequently takes two faculty members to help a student in a wheelchair to get around," Weimer pointed out, and the elevator will be a great convenience for the student and faculty

"YOU HAVE dreams and aspirations," Weimer said, "but you work with what you have." One area where this is true is the band. "We hope to have a large band," the future principal pointed out, but when the school boundaries are laid-out, "all the musicians may be on the other side"

Wiemer is aware of the need for public relations. Parents are sometimes concerned about the transfer of a student from one school to another, Weimer said, and he is interested in keeping parents informed about the progress of Schaumburg High School.

Read Clubs Open

Summer Vacation Reading Clubs for youngsters entering grades two through eight next year are being sponsored by the children's room of the Schaumburg library.

The summer reading clubs are planned to be in operation for July and August. During these months township youngsters are urged to "cool it with books."

YOUNGSTERS residing in Schaumburg Township may register for the summer reading clubs now in the library's children's room, located in the basement of the library building.

A program for beginning readers will start Wednesday, July 9, at 1 p.m. It will consist of storytelling and book talks and will help children retain their reading skills over the summer.

A reading club for children entering grades three through eight in the fall will hold its first meeting Tuesday, July 8, at 1 p m. This summer reading program will include book talks, record and slide shows, hobby demonstrations and a puppet show.

YOUNGSTERS WHO read 15 books during the summer will be awarded an achievement certificate by the library.

Additional information about the reading clubs can be obtained by calling the library at 529-3373.

FIVE UNCOMPLETED houses like the tarpapered one will be demolished by order of the Hoffman Estates board in Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision west of Palatine. Homes in the subdivision were never completed and the 155-acre area is now involved in foreclosure suits. In addition, the Teamsters Pension Fund, mortgage holder, is suing the village over special assessment costs for water, sewer and allied facilities in the subdivision that fronts Palatine Road.

Schlickman Cites Background

State Rep Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, predictably became the 13th District's fourth congressional candidate Monday.

He unexpectedly resigned his position as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, excusing himself for reasons of time, both for himself and what should be given the organization.

He will not resign his five-year tenure in the Illinois House of Representatives, however. Unless, according to Schlickman, "only at a time it is certain I'm going to Congress"

Schlickman, 39, announced his candidacy for Congress Monday in a press conference in Arlington Towers. The Northwest suburbs were first on his schedule of press sessions he held throughout the district that day.

HE FACES in the Oct 7 primary race the declared candidates — Gerald Marks of Wilmettee, Joseph Mathewson of Winnetka and Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth

Marks Monday commented that he had talked to Schlickman Sunday evening. Marks related that he had offered his support to Schlickman if he is the primary winner.

Schlickman said the main issue in his campaign will be qualification for office. He traced public service through five years in the Illinois House and five years on the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

A second qualifier he mentioned was a legal background as a lawyer in genelal practice. Thirdly, he cited service to the Republican Party as Wheeling Township committeeman, pointing out its successes in delivering Republican votes

"Wheeling Township in the last election (Nov. 5) got statewide attention and recognition," he said. He later mentioned that the township delivered the largest plurality in the last congressional election of any township in the district.

HE RESIGNED as committeeman, he said, to devote more time to the congressional campaign and to insure the organization's own growth and strengthening

"I approach the campaign with confidence and enthusiasm," he said in his announcement.

He will announce a campaign manager later, he said.

He viewed his voter strength in the

Miss Shindig Applications Due This Week

This is the final week for Schaumburg Township girls to enter the Miss Shindig contest being sponsored by the Schaumburg Volunteer Fire Department in connection with the annual Shindig benefit.

The contest is for girls 13 to 17. It is not a beauty or talent contest. The 10 finalists will be selected by a popularity vote.

RATHER THAN a ballot vote, it will be a penny a vote or as much as anyone cares to contribute to his favorite girl. The girl with the most money votes will be Miss Shindig.

The four runners up will be the court of honor. A coronation dance will be held at the Great Hall July 19. Shindig festivities will be a week later.

All proceeds from the contest will go to the fire department for equipment.

Reading Report Due

A report on reading achievement tests given to Dist. 54 first grade pupils will be presented at Thursday's board of education meeting at Helen Keller Junior High at 8 p.m.

Dist. 54 reading consultants Mrs. Norma Harmon and Mrs. Lee Schumacher were in charge of testing.

Tests were given both to classes using the Open Court (phonics) reading program and those classes using the Scott Foresman reading program.

Currently the Open Court program is being used in first grade classes at Fairview, Churchill, Anne Fox and Hanover Highlands schools. This program is also used in grades two and three at Fairview School.

TEST SCORES of first grade pupils in Open Court classes were analyzed and compared with scores for first grade classes from Hillcrest, Hoffman, Nathan Hale and Blackhawk schools.

Additional testing of Open Court pupils is planned following the second and third grades as well.

Next year Dist. 54 intends to adopt the Open Court program for all of its first grade classes at a total cost of about $15,000, about $320 per classroom. The program will also be expanded to the second grade at Churchill, Fox and Hanover Highlands schools.

THE CONVERSION from the present basal reader being used in Dist. 54 first grade classes to the Open Court system will involve about 50 classes.

A Dist. 54 study of three first grade classes in 1967 revealed that students using the Open Court program succeeded notably in nearly all areas tested.

Northwest suburbs but pointed to the large population in Northfield Township, half in his Third Representative District.

The Third District in November, 1968, gave Schlickman the votes to rate him first in the Illinois House in the number of total votes cast for him.

"A special election is more personality than party," he said.

On questioning, the representative said he is an enthusiastic supporter of Pres. Richard M. Nixon's philosophy of administration.

"I may see it necessary to work with the executive branch."

HE SAID Nixon's thoughtful approach to problems, such as hearing all views on the anti-ballistic missile (ABM) program "is the way I'd approach the matter and the way (Donald) Rumsfeld did."

"I think I demonstrate a knowledge of the complexities in national affairs," he said. "I will continue the two-way communication with the district with the questionaires that Rumsfeld used.

"I will be a sensitive and responsible link to Washington."

Schlickman said he had discussed his candidacy Thursday with Gov. Rihcard B. Ogilvie and assured the governor he would not jeopardize the administration bills he is handling. He joked that he is handling Johnston's House Municipalities Committee bills while his opponent is out campaigning.

The candidate has served in the legislature since 1964. He is vice chairman of the House Municipalities Committee and is an Appropriations Committee subcommittee chairman on requests of the governor, lieutenant governor, auditor of public accounts and state treasurer. He is a member of the Illinois Legislative Council and Criminal Diagnosis Council, areas of his legislative interest.

He was an Arlington Heights trustee from 1959 to 1964, resigning to run for the legislature.

Management Aids Available

The Schaumburg Township Library now has available for referral a number of pamphlets describing a wide variety of services available to small businesses through the Small Business Administration.

A list of management and technical publications available from the federal agency may also be reviewed at the library.

Firemen Balk at Plan

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs"

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans Sen. Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

Ask Party Abstention

PARIS — The French Communist Party leadership decided Monday night to ask its membership to abstain from the June 15 presidential election runoff between acting President Alain Poher and former Premier Georges Pompidou, who won most of Sunday's votes

Jacques Duclos of the Communist Party finished third in the Sunday voting. The Communist Party action came shortly after the French Socialist Party threw its support to Poher

Rain Cripples City

NEW YORK — A lightning-laced thunderstorm drenched Metropolitan New York yesterday with up to two inches of rain, crippling transportation used by hundreds of thousands of commuters and delaying the opening of stock exchanges

The rain began at 5:20 a.m., but subway service was still tied up late in the day. The weather bureau's electronic rain-measuring equipment was knocked out for the first time in history, and water was often waist deep in streets and subway tracks

Kennedy Criticized

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen rebuked Sen. Edward Kennedy yesterday for his criticism of the strategy which led to the battle for Hamburger Hill in Vietnam

Dirksen told the Senate that Kennedy's charge that military commanders were "senseless and irresponsible" in undertaking such battles while peace negotiations were under way jolted his estimate of Kennedy's "wisdom and judgment."

Approximately 40 per cent of the firemen in the Forest River Fire Protection District plan to resign if the rezoning request for the 5.2 acres at River and Foundry roads is granted

The resignation threat came to light yesterday during a hearing by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals on the proposed rezoning of the site from R-4 (single family residence) to B-4 (general service) The meeting began at 3 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building. It stretched into the evening.

Developers of the land intend to build a complex on the site consisting of two five-story apartment buildings, one with stores on its ground floor; a professional building, and a corner store building.

AT YESTERDAY'S hearing, developers asked that the area first be rezoned to general service, and then that 4.4 acres be set aside for a special use The special use request, if granted, would permit the construction of apartments.

Robert Babbin, architect of the site, testified that there is an overlap of the apartment and store parking areas because apartment dwellers and store patrons "won't be using the spaces at the same time"

Also testifying in behalf of the developers was George Brandenberg, a planning and zoning consultant In his opinion the proposed complex would give the "highest use of the land" because of surrounding land use in the area, and also because of the topography of the site. In his opinion the land is topographically poor for single residence dwellings

Three dentists and a physician are principal investors in the complex One of the dentists, Dr Paul DiFranco of Park Ridge, testified that the group plans to retain ownership of the development after it is built.

Disclosure of the firemen's resignations came from Leonard Felke, a fire department trustee He said that after plans for the development were announced last week the firemen discussed the proposed five-story buidlings and how well equipped they would be to fight a fire in them.

Felke said, "Most of the men consider their jobs a civic activity. When you talk of a four to five-story complex, the men feel they no longer want to be a part of it."

Don Held, one of the firemen, later said, "We aren't trained or equipped for a fire in this complex. I think that about 14 to 15 firemen will resign immediately if the rezoning is okayed

To Break Ground

Ground will be broken at 8:30 a.m. Thursday for the Buffalo Grove Shopping Center The eight-acre center, at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, is expected to open next November.

Attending the Thursday ceremony will be Donald Thompson, Buffalo Grove village president; Bob Babbin of Babbin and Associates, the architect; Dan Marsch of National Tea Co.; Joe Rand for Kenroy Inc.; and Stuart Grill, president of the Contracting and Consulting Corp of Rollin Meadows

ROBERT P. WEBER, director of commercial leasing for Kenroy Inc., said the Mall would be the first "neighborhood" enclosed air conditioned shopping center in the Chicago area. He also revealed that 80 per cent of the mall has been leased.

The Mall will have parking facilities for nearly 500 cars.

Eighteen stores will make up the shopping center, including National Tea and Kare Drugs. Both companies will operate from the same 23,200 square-foot premises. A 15,000-square-foot Scotts Family Store (a junior department store) will be another major tenant.

Others who have signed leases are: A men's wear retailer; family shoe store; cleaners; optometrist; Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Shop; combination beauty parlor and cosmetic boutique; Simoniz car wash, with a new automated prototype.

WEBER SAID, "We are surrounded by almost a dozen major volume residential builders presently at work on over 3,000 homes"

He also stated that 670 apartment units will be constructed directly across from the Mall in addition to an adjacent 450 units already underway.

Kenroy Inc is developer of the Buffalo Grove Mall. General contractor is Contracting and Consulting Corp. Robert Babbin & Associates is the architect.

Owners To Oppose Annex Bill

Residents of unincorporated areas are traveling to Springfield June 10 to oppose House Bill 1241 when it comes up for hearing before the Municipal Corporations Committee of the State Senate.

HB 1241 would allow municipalities to annex bordering unincorporated territory by ordinance

Mrs Marie L. Caylor of Prospect Heights, a director of the Euclid Lake Association and a spokesman for the groups opposing the bill, said buses will carry protesting homeowners from unincorporated areas of Palatine, Elk Grove, Roselle, Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights to the hearing.

THE BILL, sponsored by Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has passed the House and is now in the Senate. It provides for annexation of unincorporated areas contiguous (adjoining) to municipalities. To annex an area under the bill a municipality must adopt an ordinance expressing a desire to annex and secure a circuit court judge's approval. Nine criteria of annexation must be met.

Opponents of the bill contend that their rights to a vote before annexation would be taken away by the measure. They maintain a measure such as HB 1241 must contain not only the right to a referendum vote of the people to be annexed, but also a pre-annexation agreement which would be derived from such annexation, costs involved in annexation, including the disposition of contracts and services previously entered into by the unincorporated area, and the structure to be added.

IN A RECENT letter to members of the Senate, Mrs. Caylor said, "Obviously the municipalities concerned were not interested in surrounding land until it was built up. Having now been populated and improved, the territory is considered 'ripe for the picking.' This bill would make the annexation a 'shot gun' marriage without the unincorporated area residents being able to say 'yes'"

She said the delegation from the Northwest suburbs will carry to Springfield petitions opposing the bill, signed by several thousand homeowners and voters representing approximately 100 post office addresses.

Hits Sex Flyers

A Herald check of "scare" material being circulated in the suburban area using excerpts from sex education material reportedly in use in the San Francisco School district reveals that the items presented were taken out of context.

"The fact that the near-identical flyer appears in widely scattered areas appears to indicate that a well organized and financed group on the national level is triggering a movement," said George Canrinus, coordinator of health, physical education, athletics and recreation for the San Francisco Unified School District

The two-page pamphlet, circulated locally throughout Dist. 21, has been widely circulated in San Francisco as well as in other parts of the country, Canrinus said

"WE HAVE observed that in each case the format and content is practically identical, except for the differences in the names of local school members and the local organization sponsoring the 'anti' campaign," Canrinus told the Herald

The document being circulated in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, is "almost entirely out of context, irrelevant, or untrue" said Canrinus.

Canrinus refuted statements in the pamphlet point-by-point for the Herald

Edward Kemmett, president of the San Francisco School Board, and one of the two members voting against the Health and Family Life curriculum has expressed disapproval of the pamphlet, which quotes him, according to Canrinus

Adolfo de Urioste, the other dissenter who is described as casting a "no" vote, only opposed the K-3 program, not the fourth-through-twelfth-grade program, he said.

The slides taken from the Time-Life Corp filmstrip, "How Babies are Mad" were among 40 slides depicting plant and animal reproduction. The picture of a couple in bed was not used in the San Francisco schools, although it is used in the pamphlet now being circulated in this area.

"WE DID NOT purchase additional copies of 'How Babies are Made' because of a price increase and because other aids were preferred by our teachers," Canrinus said.

The book from which quotes are excerpted is "A Doctor Talks to Five to Eight-Year-Olds," Budlong Press, Chicago, and is "a reference recommended by many medical authorities, including our Medical Society, Canrinus stated.

Marks Monday commented that he had talked to Schlickman Sunday evening Marks related that he had offered his support to Schlickman if he is the primary winner.

Schlickman said the main issue in his campaign will be qualification for office. He traced public service through five years in the Illinois House and five years on the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

A second qualifier he mentioned was a legal background as a lawyer in genelal practice Thirdly, he cited service to the Republican Party as Wheeling Township committeeman, pointing out its successes in delivering Republican votes.

"Wheeling Township in the last election (Nov. 5) got statewide attention and recognition," he said. He later mentioned that the township delivered the largest plurality in the last congressional election of any township in the district.

HE RESIGNED as committeeman, he said, to devote more time to the congressional campaign and to insure the organization's own growth and strengthening.

"I approach the campaign with confidence and enthusiasm," he said in his announcement.

He will announce a campaign manager later, he said.

He viewed his voter strength in the Northwest suburbs but pointed to the large population in Northfield Township, half in his Third Representative District.

The Third District in November, 1968, gave Schlickman the votes to rate him first in the Illinois House in the number of total votes cast for him.

"A special election is more personality than party," he said.

On questioning, the representative said he is an enthusiastic supporter of Pres. Richard M. Nixon's philosophy of administration.

"I may see it necessary to work with the executive branch."

HE SAID Nixon's thoughtful approach to problems, such as hearing all views on the anti-ballistic missile (ABM) program "is the way I'd approach the matter and the way (Donald) Rumsfeld did"

"I think I demonstrate a knowledge of the complexities in national affairs," he said. "I will continue the two-way communication with the district with the questionaires that Rumsfeld used.

"I will be a sensitive and responsible link to Washington."

Schlickman said he had discussed his candidacy Thursday with Gov. Rihcard B. Ogilvie and assured the governor he would not jeopardize the administration bills he is handling. He joked that he is handling Johnston's House Municipalities Committee bills while his opponent is out campaigning

The candidate has served in the legislature since 1964. He is vice chairman of the House Municipalities Committee and is an Appropriations Committee subcommittee chairman on requests of the governor, lieutenant governor, auditor of public accounts and state treasurer. He is a member of the Illinois Legislative Council and Criminal Diagnosis Council, areas of his legislative interest.

He was an Arlington Heights trustee from 1959 to 1964, resigning to run for the legislature.

'Cowboys' Upset Laundromat

by ANNE SLAVICEK

It's racing season.

Some people know it because they've got racing fever and can't keep away from the track.

But a group of suburban housewives know it because their laundromat has been invaded.

At 11 a.m. on Sunday the normal crowd at the 24-hour laundry in the Rolling Meadows shopping center consists of young women with an assortment of babies and small children. An occasional bachelor may break the routine, or a helpful husband, but normally the crowd is fairly static

LAST SUNDAY, however, there was a change in the air.

Into the normal shopping center laundromat marched five cowboys.

Racing fans would shudder to think that stable boys and grooms and the variety of other race track help could be called "cowboys," but they were dressed like typical Hollywood-type cowboys.

Nothing could be more out of place than a tall lanky man dressed in boots and a western hat sorting clothes over a washing machine.

Small children, who normally lun around the machines in circles hollering, hid behind their mother's skirts and stared at the men.

One housewife explained how to rebalance a load when a machine stuck. A mother, holding a baby, bawled out a cowboy who was about to wash black socks and white shirts in the same machine.

HOWEVER, few of the women were particularly friendly.

The silence in the usually noisy laundromat was almost deafening.

Without saying anything the housewives managed to push ahead of the men who were waiting for dryers.

Like some kind of ostracized invaders, the men stayed on one side of the machines and most of the women used those in a different line.

Puzzled by the dryer mechanism, a young boy held his dripping wet clothes in mid-air as he read a sign on the wall.

And one helpful cowboy taught another how to fold a shirt so it didn't need ironing.

Dope Law Urged

About 3,000 Wheeling residents have signed petitions supporting strong drug laws to protect school children from dope peddlers, though administrators say drugs have caused few problems at Wheeling High School.

The Wheeling High School Teacher-Parent Council (TPC) is sponsoring the drive and copies of the petitions will be sent to three local state representatives and a state senator, according to Clarence Miller, vice principal of Wheeling High School.

"The drug problem in the area is certainly not serious," Miller said. "But I think it is correct to say that a problem exists even if only one student is taking drugs."

Miller said it is "common knowledge" that a few students in area high schools have taken drugs. "Last fall one or two Wheeling students were discovered by the police to be involved with drugs."

"THE TPC DOESN'T know of any state law now on the books that specifically protects students in public and private schools from dope pushers," Miller continued. "If there is in fact no existing law to protect these children, the council plans to ask our state legislators to sponsor one."

Miller said the drug petitions will be turned in to him at the end of the and that he will send them to State Reps. Eugenia Chapman and Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights and David Regner of Mount Prospect and to State Sen. John Graham of Barrington. He said the TPC hopes to meet with these lawmakers in the near future to discuss the drug situation.

"The parents are not trying to stir up controversy. They simply want to show the legislators they are concerned about drugs," said Thomas Shirley, principal at Wheeling High. "Drugs are not a serious problem here, but they could become a problem if pushers are allowed to operate freely."

During the last school year, Wheeling High School sponsored a series of four educational programs aimed at alerting students to the dangers of taking drugs.

mother toad carrying a young toad on her back."

The pamphlet quotes extensively from a television program, "The Time of Your Life," saying this is health and family life education for intermediate prepared by BRITE for KQED Instructional Television Service, Grades four, five and six. This series is produced by the educational TV station, not by the school department, said Canrinus.

"Evaluations indicate that from 85 to 95 per cent of parents who have seen the entire 15 programs approve of it for the upper elementary grades," he said.

HOWEVER, he continued, "Our district has deleted this aid from our guide because we prefer to recommend aids which teachers can use at the most appropriate time, rather than be bound by the rigidity of a TV schedule."

The quotations used in the "scare" pamphlet are taken from the teacher's guide, distributed by the producer of the TV programs.

"These quotations are correct," Canrinus said. "It should be kept in mind that the guide is a publication for experienced and trained teachers, most of whom use discussion techniques in subjects."

Noise Case Scheduled In Court Again Today

The case brought by the Village of Wheeling against Rock Road Construction Co goes to court again today, following a continuance because noise tests hadn't been run.

The case, in progress since last fall, was brought because residents complained of the excessive noise coming from the company's asphalt-making operations.

The company testified last month that new machinery to muffle the noise had been installed

The court ordered new tests to see if the noise level is within village ordinance specifications. Those tests were delayed because of an explosion at the plant.

Talks Continue On Drain

Negotiations are continuing among the principals in the long-standing Cambridge drainage dispute in an effort to avert a trial.

Paul Hamer, Wheeling village attorney, predicted the case would come to trial this summer if settlement effortsa re unsuccessful.

The negotiations are in the form of pretrial conferences held in Judge Daniel Covelli's chambers. Should the suits go to trial, Judge Covelli will preside. Hamer said the four suits have been consolidated for trial purposes.

JUNE 13 is the date of the next conference. Hamer said if a settlement is not reached at this conference a trial date will be set.

"I feel that much progress has been made," Hamer said of the conferences. Representatives from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling and spokesmen for developers in the affected area as well as consulting engineers are attending the meetings.

Hamer said that at the last meeting "an engineering solution for the area had been reached." Financial problems are holding up a settlement.

Engineers presented six possible plans at the meeting. From those, the group chose one. "Final cost of the plan has not been determined," Hamer said.

Firemen Balk at Plan

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court.

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans Sen. Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

Ask Party Abstention

PARIS — The French Communist Party leadership decided Monday night to ask its membership to abstain from the June 15 presidential election runoff between acting President Alain Poher and former Premier Georges Pompidou, who won most of Sunday's votes.

Jacques Duclos of the Communist Party finished third in the Sunday voting. The Communist Party action came shortly after the French Socialist Party threw its support to Poher

Rain Cripples City

NEW YORK — A lightning-laced thunderstorm drenched Metropolitan New York yesterday with up to two inches of rain, crippling transportation used by hundreds of thousands of commuters and delaying the opening of stock exchanges.

The rain began at 5:20 a.m., but subway service was still tied up late in the day. The weather bureau's electronic rain-measuring equipment was knocked out for the first time in history, and water was often waist deep in streets and subway tracks.

Kennedy Criticized

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen rebuked Sen. Edward Kennedy yesterday for his criticism of the strategy which led to the battle for Hamburger Hill in Vietnam

Dirksen told the Senate that Kennedy's charge that military commanders were "senseless and irresponsible" in undertaking such battles while peace negotiations were under way jolted his estimate of Kennedy's "wisdom and judgment."

Approximately 40 per cent of the firemen in the Forest River Fire Protection District plan to resign if the rezoning request for the 5.2 acres at River and Foundry roads is granted.

The resignation threat came to light yesterday during a hearing by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals on the proposed rezoning of the site from R-4 (single family residence) to B-4 (general service) The meeting began at 3 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building. It stretched into the evening.

Developers of the land intend to build a complex on the site consisting of two five-story apartment buildings, one with stores on its ground floor; a professional building, and a corner store building.

AT YESTERDAY'S hearing, developers asked that the area first be rezoned to general service, and then that 4.4 acres be set aside for a special use. The special use request, if granted, would permit the construction of apartments.

Robert Babbin, architect of the site, testified that there is an overlap of the apartment and store parking areas because apartment dwellers and store patrons "won't be using the spaces at the same time."

Also testifying in behalf of the developers was George Brandenberg, a planning and zoning consultant. In his opinion the proposed complex would give the "highest use of the land" because of surrounding land use in the area, and also because of the topography of the site. In his opinion the land is topographically poor for single residence dwellings.

Three dentists and a physician are principal investors in the complex. One of the dentists, Dr. Paul DiFranco of Park Ridge, testified that the group plans to retain ownership of the development after it is built.

Disclosure of the firemen's resignations came from Leonard Felke, a fire department trustee. He said that after plans for the development were announced last week the firemen discussed the proposed five-story buidlings and how well equipped they would be to fight a fire in them.

Felke said, "Most of the men consider their jobs a civic activity. When you talk of a four to five-story complex, the men feel they no longer want to be a part of it."

Don Held, one of the firemen, later said, "We aren't trained or equipped for a fire in this complex. I think that about 14 to 15 firemen will resign immediately if the rezoning is okayed.

To Break Ground

Ground will be broken at 8:30 a.m. Thursday for the Buffalo Grove Shopping Center. The eight-acre center, at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, is expected to open next November.

Attending the Thursday ceremony will be Donald Thompson, Buffalo Grove village president; Bob Babbin of Babbin and Associates, the architect; Dan Marsch of National Tea Co.; Joe Rand for Kenroy Inc.; and Stuart Grill, president of the Contracting and Consulting Corp. of Rollin Meadows.

ROBERT P. WEBER, director of commercial leasing for Kenroy Inc., said the Mall would be the first "neighborhood" enclosed air conditioned shopping center in the Chicago area. He also revealed that 80 per cent of the mall has been leased.

The Mall will have parking facilities for nearly 500 cars.

Eighteen stores will make up the shopping center, including National Tea and Kare Drugs. Both companies will operate from the same 23,200 square-foot premises. A 15,000-square-foot Scotts Family Store (a junior department store) will be another major tenant.

Others who have signed leases are: A men's wear retailer; family shoe store; cleaners; optometrist; Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Shop; combination beauty parlor and cosmetic boutique; Simoniz car wash, with a new automated prototype.

WEBER SAID, "We are surrounded by almost a dozen major volume residential builders presently at work on over 3,000 homes."

He also stated that 670 apartment units will be constructed directly across from the Mall in addition to an adjacent 450 units already underway.

Kenroy Inc. is developer of the Buffalo Grove Mall. General contractor is Contracting and Consulting Corp. Robert Babbin & Associates is the architect.

Owners To Oppose Annex Bill

Residents of unincorporated areas are traveling to Springfield June 10 to oppose House Bill 1241 when it comes up for hearing before the Municipal Corporations Committee of the State Senate.

HB 1241 would allow municipalities to annex bordering unincorporated territory by ordinance.

Mrs. Marie L. Caylor of Prospect Heights, a director of the Euclid Lake Association and a spokesman for the groups opposing the bill, said buses will carry protesting homeowners from unincorporated areas of Palatine, Elk Grove, Roselle, Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights to the hearing.

THE BILL, sponsored by Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has passed the House and is now in the Senate. It provides for annexation of unincorporated areas contiguous (adjoining) to municipalities. To annex an area under the bill a municipality must adopt an ordinance expressing a desire to annex and secure a circuit court judge's approval. Nine criteria of annexation must be met.

Opponents of the bill contend that their rights to a vote before annexation would be taken away by the measure. They maintain a measure such as HB 1241 must contain not only the right to a referendum vote of the people to be annexed, but also a pre-annexation agreement which would be derived from such annexation, costs involved in annexation, including the disposition of contracts and services previously entered into by the unincorporated area, and the structure to be added.

IN A RECENT letter to members of the Senate, Mrs. Caylor said, "Obviously the municipalities concerned were not interested in surrounding land until it was built up. Having now been populated and improved, the territory is considered 'ripe for the picking.' This bill would make the annexation a 'shot gun' marriage without the unincorporated area residents being able to say 'yes.'"

She said the delegation from the Northwest suburbs will carry to Springfield petitions opposing the bill, signed by several thousand homeowners and voters representing approximately 100 post office addresses.

Hits Sex Flyers

A Herald check of "scare" material being circulated in the suburban area using excerpts from sex education material reportedly in use in the San Francisco School district reveals that the items presented were taken out of context.

"The fact that the near-identical flyer appears in widely scattered areas appears to indicate that a well organized and financed group on the national level is triggering a movement," said George Canrinus, coordinator of health, physical education, athletics and recreation for the San Francisco Unified School District.

The two-page pamphlet, circulated locally throughout Dist. 21, has been widely circulated in San Francisco as well as in other parts of the country, Canrinus said.

"WE HAVE observed that in each case the format and content is practically identical, except for the differences in the names of local school members and the local organization sponsoring the 'anti' campaign," Canrinus told the Herald.

The document being circulated in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, is "almost entirely out of context, irrelevant, or untrue" said Canrinus.

Canrinus refuted statements in the pamphlet point-by-point for the Herald.

Edward Kemmett, president of the San Francisco School Board, and one of the two members voting against the Health and Family Life curriculum has expressed disapproval of the pamphlet, which quotes him, according to Canrinus.

Adolfo de Urioste, the other dissenter who is described as casting a "no" vote, only opposed the K-3 program, not the fourth-through-twelfth-grade program, he said.

The slides taken from the Time-Life Corp. filmstrip, "How Babies are Made," were among 40 slides depicting plant and animal reproduction. The picture of a couple in bed was not used in the San Francisco schools, although it is used in the pamphlet now being circulated in this area.

"WE DID NOT purchase additional copies of 'How Babies are Made' because of a price increase and because other aids were preferred by our teachers," Canrinus said.

The book from which quotes are excerpted is "A Doctor Talks to Five to Eight-Year-Olds," Budlong Press, Chicago, and is "a reference recommended by many medical authorities, including our Medical Society, Canrinus stated.

Schlickman Cites Background

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, predictably became the 13th District's fourth congressional candidate Monday.

He unexpectedly resigned his position as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, excusing himself for reasons of time, both for himself and what should be given the organization.

He will not resign his five-year tenure in the Illinois House of Representatives, however. Unless, according to Schlickman, "only at a time it is certain I'm going to Congress."

Schlickman, 39, announced his candidacy for Congress Monday in a press conference in Arlington Towers. The Northwest suburbs were first on his schedule of press sessions he held throughout the district that day.

HE FACES in the Oct. 7 primary race the declared candidates — Gerald Marks of Wilmettee, Joseph Mathewson of Winnetka and Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth.

Marks Monday commented that he had talked to Schlickman Sunday evening. Marks related that he had offered his support to Schlickman if he is the primary winner.

Schlickman said the main issue in his campaign will be qualification for office. He traced public service through five years in the Illinois House and five years on the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

A second qualifier he mentioned was a legal background as a lawyer in genelal practice. Thirdly, he cited service to the Republican Party as Wheeling Township committeeman, pointing out its successes in delivering Republican votes.

"Wheeling Township in the last election (Nov. 5) got statewide attention and recognition," he said. He later mentioned that the township delivered the largest plurality in the last congressional election of any township in the district.

HE RESIGNED as committeeman, he said, to devote more time to the congressional campaign and to insure the organization's own growth and strengthening.

"I approach the campaign with confidence and enthusiasm," he said in his announcement.

He will announce a campaign manager later, he said.

He viewed his voter strength in the Northwest suburbs but pointed to the large population in Northfield Township, half in his Third Representative District.

The Third District in November, 1968, gave Schlickman the votes to rate him first in the Illinois House in the number of total votes cast for him.

"A special election is more personality than party," he said.

On questioning, the representative said he is an enthusiastic supporter of Pres. Richard M. Nixon's philosophy of administration.

"I may see it necessary to work with the executive branch."

HE SAID Nixon's thoughtful approach to problems, such as hearing all views on the anti-ballistic missile (ABM) program "is the way I'd approach the matter and the way (Donald) Rumsfeld did."

"I think I demonstrate a knowledge of the complexities in national affairs," he said. "I will continue the two-way communication with the district with the questionaires that Rumsfeld used.

"I will be a sensitive and responsible link to Washington."

Schlickman said he had discussed his candidacy Thursday with Gov. Rihcard B. Ogilvie and assured the governor he would not jeopardize the administration bills he is handling. He joked that he is handling Johnston's House Municipalities Committee bills while his opponent is out campaigning.

The candidate has served in the legislature since 1964. He is vice chairman of the House Municipalities Committee and is an Appropriations Committee subcommittee chairman on requests of the governor, lieutenant governor, auditor of public accounts and state treasurer. He is a member of the Illinois Legislative Council and Criminal Diagnosis Council, areas of his legislative interest.

He was an Arlington Heights trustee from 1959 to 1964, resigning to run for the legislature.

'Cowboys' Upset Laundromat

by ANNE SLAVICEK

It's racing season.

Some people know it because they've got racing fever and can't keep away from the track.

But a group of suburban housewives know it because their laundromat has been invaded.

At 11 a.m. on Sunday the normal crowd at the 24-hour laundry in the Rolling Meadows shopping center consists of young women with an assortment of babies and small children. An occasional bachelor may break the routine, or a helpful husband, but normally the crowd is fairly static.

LAST SUNDAY, however, there was a change in the air.

Into the normal shopping center laundromat marched five cowboys.

Racing fans would shudder to think that stable boys and grooms and the variety of other race track help could be called "cowboys," but they were dressed like typical Hollywood-type cowboys.

Nothing could be more out of place than a tall lanky man dressed in boots and a western hat sorting clothes over a washing machine.

Small children, who normally lun around the machines in circles hollering, hid behind their mother's skirts and stared at the men.

One housewife explained how to rebalance a load when a machine stuck. A mother, holding a baby, bawled out a cowboy who was about to wash black socks and white shirts in the same machine.

HOWEVER, few of the women were particularly friendly.

The silence in the usually noisy laundromat was almost deafening.

Without saying anything the housewives managed to push ahead of the men who were waiting for dryers.

Like some kind of ostracized invaders, the men stayed on one side of the machines and most of the women used those in a different line.

Puzzled by the dryer mechanism, a young boy held his dripping wet clothes in mid-air as he read a sign on the wall.

And one helpful cowboy taught another how to fold a shirt so it didn't need ironing.

Dope Law Urged

About 3,000 Wheeling residents have signed petitions supporting strong drug laws to protect school children from dope peddlers, though administrators say drugs have caused few problems at Wheeling High School.

The Wheeling High School Teacher-Parent Council (TPC) is sponsoring the drive and copies of the petitions will be sent to three local state representatives and a state senator, according to Clarence Miller, vice principal of Wheeling High School.

"The drug problem in the area is certainly not serious," Miller said. "But I think it is correct to say that a problem exists even if only one student is taking drugs."

Miller said it is "common knowledge" that a few students in area high schools have taken drugs. "Last fall one or two Wheeling students were discovered by the police to be involved with drugs."

"THE TPC DOESN'T know of any state law now on the books that specifically protects students in public and private schools from dope pushers," Miller continued. "If there is in fact no existing law to protect these children, the council plans to ask our state legislators to sponsor one."

Miller said the drug petitions will be turned in to him at the end of the and that he will send them to State Reps. Eugenia Chapman and Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights and David Regner of Mount Prospect and to State Sen. John Graham of Barrington. He said the TPC hopes to meet with these lawmakers in the near future to discuss the drug situation.

"The parents are not trying to stir up controversy. They simply want to show the legislators they are concerned about drugs," said Thomas Shirley, principal at Wheeling High. "Drugs are not a serious problem here, but they could become a problem if pushers are allowed to operate freely."

During the last school year, Wheeling High School sponsored a series of four educational programs aimed at alerting students to the dangers of taking drugs.

mother toad carrying a young toad on her back."

The pamphlet quotes extensively from a television program, "The Time of Your Life," saying this is health and family life education for intermediate prepared by BRITE for KQED Instructional Television Service, Grades four, five and six. This series is produced by the educational TV station, not by the school department, said Canrinus.

"Evaluations indicate that from 85 to 95 per cent of parents who have seen the entire 15 programs approve of it for the upper elementary grades," he said.

HOWEVER, he continued, "Our district has deleted this aid from our guide because we prefer to recommend aids which teachers can use at the most appropriate time, rather than be bound by the rigidity of a TV schedule."

The quotations used in the "scare" pamphlet are taken from the teacher's guide, distributed by the producer of the TV programs.

"These quotations are correct," Canrinus said. "It should be kept in mind that the guide is a publication for experienced and trained teachers, most of whom use discussion techniques in subjects."

Summer Athletic Program Outlined

Noise Case Scheduled In Court Again Today

The case brought by the Village of Wheeling against Rock Road Construction Co. goes to court again today, following a continuance because noise tests hadn't been run.

The case, in progress since last fall, was brought because residents complained of the excessive noise coming from the company's asphalt-making operations.

The company testified last month that new machinery to muffle the noise had been installed.

The court ordered new tests to see if the noise level is within village ordinance specifications. Those tests were delayed because of an explosion at the plant.

Scouts Attend North Star Spring Camporee

Some 700 boys and Scout leaders from the area attended the North Star Spring Camporee May 23-25 at Illinois Beach State Park near Zion. The camporee was the largest staged by any of the seven districts in the Northwest Suburban Council

The 86 patrols and their adult leaders demonstrated their scouting skills in a series of events which included hiking five-miles and crossing a river on stilts.

The boys pitched tents and cooked their own food. Scout leaders judged them on how well they performed these tasks.

RIBBONS WERE AWARDED to those who performed most efficiently. Some 100 boys and adults were given the Order of the Arrow, scouting's honor group.

Nine seven Webelos boys, who will soon become Boy Scouts, attended the camporee May 24 with their parents. They participated in an outdoor scouting program directed by Ray Krasnesky of Mount Prospect, assistant commissioner for Webelos.

William Balaz of Mount Prospect supervised the camporee.

Plan for 'Buffalo Grove Days' In Aug.

Tentative plans for "Buffalo Grove Days" were drawn up Wednesday night during a planning meeting at the Buffalo Grove Village Hall. The annual Labor Day weekend event is sponsored and organized by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees. It will be held Aug. 30 and 31.

Chairman for this year's celebration is Nick Rubino of the Jaycees. Thirty-nine Buffalo Grove civic and church groups are participating in the event.

"The idea of 'Buffalo Grove Days' is to offer residents a 'fun weekend' right in their own hometown," said Mrs. Dorothy Berth, president of the Buffalo Grove Garden Club. Her group is one of those participating.

TENTATIVE PLANS call for Little League baseball playoffs and a children's track meet Saturday afternoon. That evening a dance and cookout will be held for adults.

Sunday's activities include a parade at noon with band concerts and drill team exhibitions later in the afternoon. Amusement rides and booths also will be set up.

Sunday evening a dance is scheduled for teenagers.

Vandals left a trail of broken trees, marked cars and torn-up gardens after a rampage through several subdivisions in the western end of Wheeling late Friday night.

Police received reports of 20 incidents of vandalism discovered by residents Saturday morning. Police speculated that the damage had been done by a group of youths in cars about midnight Friday.

POLICE REPORTS noted several broken trees, a bent car antenna, a slashed convertible top, car seats on which oil had been dumped, a broken fence, and several damaged gardens.

The vandals followed a path down Valley Stream Drive to Berkshire Lane, across Dundee Road and along Anthony Lane to Marcy Lane and Birch Trail.

Damage resulting from the accident was $250 to the front of Schumacher's car, and $200 to the car driven by Stephens. A June 24 court date was set in Arlington Heights District Court.

The accident occurred at 3 p.m. on the south side of Dundee Road at Elmhurst Road. Frank K. Gemignani of Chicago was the driver of the other car. The accident caused $150 damage to his auto, police said.

Mrs. Coniglio received a cut knee. Her children, Stephanie, 15, and John, 6, also received cuts in the accident. Damage to her car was estimated at $300. She is to appear in Arlington Heights Court July 1.

Talks Continue On Drain

Negotiations are continuing among the principals in the long-standing Cambridge drainage dispute in an effort to avert a trial.

Paul Hamer, Wheeling village attorney, predicted the case would come to trial this summer if settlement effortsa re unsuccessful.

The negotiations are in the form of pretrial conferences held in Judge Daniel Covelli's chambers. Should the suits go to trial, Judge Covelli will preside. Hamer said the four suits have been consolidated for trial purposes.

JUNE 13 is the date of the next conference. Hamer said if a settlement is not reached at this conference a trial date will be set.

"I feel that much progress has been made," Hamer said of the conferences. Representatives from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling and spokesmen for developers in the affected area as well as consulting engineers are attending the meetings.

Hamer said that at the last meeting "an engineering solution for the area had been reached." Financial problems are holding up a settlement.

Engineers presented six possible plans at the meeting. From those, the group chose one. "Final cost of the plan has not been determined," Hamer said.

Order Civilian Trial

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible.

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration.

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment sumply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans Sen. Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

Approximately 40 per cent of the firemen in the Forest River Fire Protection District plan to resign if the rezoning request for the 5 2 acres at River and Foundry roads is granted

The resignation threat came to light yesterday during a hearing by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals on the proposed rezoning of the site from R-4 (single family residence) to B-4 (general service). The meeting began at 3 p m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building. It stretched into the evening.

Developers of the land intend to build a complex on the site consisting of two five-story apartment buildings, one with stores on its ground floor, a professional building, and a corner store building

AT YESTERDAY'S hearing, developers asked that the area first be rezoned to general service, and then that 4.4 acres be set aside for a special use. The special use request, if granted, would permit the construction of apartments.

Robert Babbin, architect of the site, testified that there is an overlap of the apartment and store parking areas because apartment dwellers and store patrons "won't be using the spaces at the same time "

Also testifying in behalf of the developers was George Brandenberg, a planning and zoning consultant In his opinion the proposed complex would give the "highest use of the land" because of surrounding land use in the area, and also because of the topography of the site In his opinion the land is topographically poor for single residence dwellings.

Three dentists and a physician are principal investors in the complex. One of the dentists, Dr. Paul DiFranco of Park Ridge, testified that the group plans to retain ownership of the development after it is built

Disclosure of the firemen's resignations came from Leonard Felke, a fire department trustee. He said that after plans for the development were announced last week the firemen discussed the proposed five-story buidlings and how well equipped they would be to fight a fire in them.

Felke said, "Most of the men consider their jobs a civic activity. When you talk of a four to five-story complex, the men feel they no longer want to be a part of it."

Don Held, one of the firemen, later said, "We aren't trained or equipped for a fire in this complex. I think that about 14 to 15 firemen will resign immediately if the rezoning is okayed

To Break Ground

Ground will be broken at 8:30 a m Thursday for the Buffalo Grove Shopping Center. The eight-acre center, at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, is expected to open next November.

Attending the Thursday ceremony will be Donald Thompson, Buffalo Grove village president; Bob Babbin of Babbin and Associates, the architect; Dan Marsch of National Tea Co., Joe Rand for Kenroy Inc ; and Stuart Grill, president of the Contracting and Consulting Corp. of Rollin Meadows

ROBERT P. WEBER, director of commercial leasing for Kenroy Inc., said the Mall would be the first "neighborhood" enclosed air conditioned shopping center in the Chicago area. He also revealed that 80 per cent of the mall has been leased

The Mall will have parking facilities for nearly 500 cars.

Eighteen stores will make up the shopping center, including National Tea and Kare Drugs. Both companies will operate from the same 23,200 square-foot premises. A 15,000-square-foot Scotts Family Store (a junior department store) will be another major tenant.

Others who have signed leases are: A men's wear retailer; family shoe store; cleaners; optometrist; Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Shop; combination beauty parlor and cosmetic boutique; Simoniz car wash, with a new automated prototype.

WEBER SAID, "We are surrounded by almost a dozen major volume residential builders presently at work on over 3,000 homes "

He also stated that 670 apartment units will be constructed directly across from the Mall in addition to an adjacent 450 units already underway

Kenroy Inc. is developer of the Buffalo Grove Mall. General contractor is Contracting and Consulting Corp. Robert Babbin & Associates is the architect.

Owners To Oppose Annex Bill

Residents of unincorporated areas are traveling to Springfield June 10 to oppose House Bill 1241 when it comes up for hearing before the Municipal Corporations Committee of the State Senate.

HB 1241 would allow municipalities to annex bordering unincorporated territory by ordinance

Mrs Marie L Caylor of Prospect Heights, a director of the Euclid Lake Association and a spokesman for the groups opposing the bill, said buses will carry protesting homeowners from unincorporated areas of Palatine, Elk Grove, Roselle, Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights to the hearing.

THE BILL, sponsored by Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has passed the House and is now in the Senate. It provides for annexation of unincorporated areas contiguous (adjoining) to municipalities. To annex an area under the bill a municipality must adopt an ordinance expressing a desire to annex and secure a circuit court judge's approval. Nine criteria of annexation must be met.

Opponents of the bill contend that their rights to a vote before annexation would be taken away by the measure. They maintain a measure such as HB 1241 must contain not only the right to a referendum vote of the people to be annexed, but also a pre-annexation agreement which would be derived from such annexation, costs involved in annexation, including the disposition of contracts and services previously entered into by the unincorporated area, and the structure to be added.

IN A RECENT letter to members of the Senate, Mrs. Caylor said, "Obviously the municipalities concerned were not interested in surrounding land until it was built up Having now been populated and improved, the territory is considered 'ripe for the picking ' This bill would make the annexation a 'shot gun' marriage without the unincorporated area residents being able to say 'yes ' "

She said the delegation from the Northwest suburbs will carry to Springfield petitions opposing the bill, signed by several thousand homeowners and voters representing approximately 100 post office addresses.

Hits Sex Flyers

A Herald check of "scare" material being circulated in the suburban area using excerpts from sex education material reportedly in use in the San Francisco School district reveals that the items presented were taken out of context

"The fact that the near-identical flyer appears in widely scattered areas appears to indicate that a well organized and financed group on the national level is triggering a movement," said George Canrinus, coordinator of health, physical education, athletics and recreation for the San Francisco Unified School District

The two-page pamphlet, circulated locally throughout Dist. 21, has been widely circulated in San Francisco as well as in other parts of the country, Canrinus said

"WE HAVE observed that in each case the format and content is practically identical, except for the differences in the names of local school members and the local organization sponsoring the 'anti' campaign," Canrinus told the Herald

The document being circulated in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, is "almost entirely out of context, irrelevant, or untrue" said Canrinus.

Canrinus refuted statements in the pamphlet point-by-point for the Herald.

Edward Kemmett, president of the San Francisco School Board, and one of the two members voting against the Health and Family Life curriculum has expressed disapproval of the pamphlet which quotes him, according to Canrinus

Adolfo de Urioste, the other dissenter who is described as casting a "no" vote, only opposed the K-3 program, not the fourth-through-twelfth-grade program, he said

The slides taken from the Time-Life Corp filmstrip, "How Babies are Made," were among 40 slides depicting plant and animal reproduction The picture of a couple in bed was not used in the San Francisco schools, although it is used in the pamphlet now being circulated in this area.

"WE DID NOT purchase additional copies of 'How Babies are Made' because of a price increase and because other aids were preferred by our teachers." Canrinus said.

The book from which quotes are excerpted is "A Doctor Talks to Five to Eight-Year-Olds," Budlong Press, Chicago, and is "a reference recommended by many medical authorities, including our Medical Society, Canrinus stated.

Schlickman Cites Background

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, predictably became the 13th District's fourth congressional candidate Monday

He unexpectedly resigned his position as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, excusing himself for reasons of time, both for himself and what should be given the organization

He will not resign his five-year tenure in the Illinois House of Representatives, however Unless, according to Schlickman, "only at a time it is certain I'm going to Congress "

Schlickman, 39, announced his candidacy for Congress Monday in a press conference in Arlington Towers. The Northwest suburbs were first on his schedule of press sessions he held throughout the district that day.

HE FACES in the Oct. 7 primary race the declared candidates — Gerald Marks of Wilmettee, Joseph Mathewson of Winnetka and Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth

Marks Monday commented that he had talked to Schlickman Sunday evening Marks related that he had offered his support to Schlickman if he is the primary winner.

Schlickman said the main issue in his campaign will be qualification for office. He traced public service through five years in the Illinois House and five years on the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

A second qualifier he mentioned was a legal background as a lawyer in genelal practice Thirdly, he cited service to the Republican Party as Wheeling Township committeeman, pointing out its successes in delivering Republican votes.

"Wheeling Township in the last election (Nov 5) got statewide attention and recognition," he said. He later mentioned that the township delivered the largest plurality in the last congressional election of any township in the district.

HE RESIGNED as committeeman, he said, to devote more time to the congressional campaign and to insure the organization's own growth and strengthening.

"I approach the campaign with confidence and enthusiasm," he said in his announcement.

He will announce a campaign manager later, he said.

He viewed his voter strength in the Northwest suburbs but pointed to the large population in Northfield Township, half in his Third Representative District.

The Third District in November, 1968, gave Schlickman the votes to rate him first in the Illinois House in the number of total votes cast for him.

"A special election is more personality than party," he said.

On questioning, the representative said he is an enthusiastic supporter of Pres. Richard M. Nixon's philosophy of administration.

"I may see it necessary to work with the executive branch "

HE SAID Nixon's thoughtful approach to problems, such as hearing all views on the anti-ballistic missile (ABM) program "is the way I'd approach the matter and the way (Donald) Rumsfeld did "

"I think I demonstrate a knowledge of the complexities in national affairs," he said "I will continue the two-way communication with the district with the questionaires that Rumsfeld used

"I will be a sensitive and responsible link to Washington."

Schlickman said he had discussed his candidacy Thursday with Gov. Rihcard B. Ogilvie and assured the governor he would not jeopardize the administration bills he is handling. He joked that he is handling Johnston's House Municipalities Committee bills while his opponent is out campaigning.

The candidate has served in the legislature since 1964. He is vice chairman of the House Municipalities Committee and is an Appropriations Committee subcommittee chairman on requests of the governor, lieutenant governor, auditor of public accounts and state treasurer. He is a member of the Illinois Legislative Council and Criminal Diagnosis Council, areas of his legislative interest.

He was an Arlington Heights trustee from 1959 to 1964, resigning to run for the legislature.

'Cowboys' Upset Laundromat

by ANNE SLAVICEK

It's racing season.

Some people know it because they've got racing fever and can't keep away from the track.

But a group of suburban housewives know it because their laundromat has been invaded.

At 11 a.m on Sunday the normal crowd at the 24-hour laundry in the Rolling Meadows shopping center consists of young women with an assortment of babies and small children An occasional bachelor may break the routine, or a helpful husband, but normally the crowd is fairly static.

LAST SUNDAY, however, there was a change in the air.

Into the normal shopping center laundromat marched five cowboys.

Racing fans would shudder to think that stable boys and grooms and the variety of other race track help could be called "cowboys," but they were dressed like typical Hollywood-type cowboys.

Nothing could be more out of place than a tall lanky man dressed in boots and a western hat sorting clothes over a washing machine.

Small children, who normally lun around the machines in circles hollering, hid behind their mother's skirts and stared at the men.

One housewife explained how to rebalance a load when a machine stuck. A mother, holding a baby, bawled out a cowboy who was about to wash black socks and white shirts in the same machine.

HOWEVER, few of the women were particularly friendly.

The silence in the usually noisy laundromat was almost deafening.

Without saying anything the housewives managed to push ahead of the men who were waiting for dryers.

Like some kind of ostracized invaders, the men stayed on one side of the machines and most of the women used those in a different line.

Puzzled by the dryer mechanism, a young boy held his dripping wet clothes in mid-air as he read a sign on the wall.

And one helpful cowboy taught another how to fold a shirt so it didn't need ironing.

Dope Law Urged

About 3,000 Wheeling residents have signed petitions supporting strong drug laws to protect school children from dope peddlers, though administrators say drugs have caused few problems at Wheeling High School.

The Wheeling High School Teacher-Parent Council (TPC) is sponsoring the drive and copies of the petitions will be sent to three local state representatives and a state senator, according to Clarence Miller, vice principal of Wheeling High School.

"The drug problem in the area is certainly not serious," Miller said. "But I think it is correct to say that a problem exists even if only one student is taking drugs."

Miller said it is "common knowledge" that a few students in area high schools have taken drugs. "Last fall one or two Wheeling students were discovered by the police to be involved with drugs."

"THE TPC DOESN'T know of any state law now on the books that specifically protects students in public and private schools from dope pushers," Miller continued. "If there is in fact no existing law to protect these children, the council plans to ask our state legislators to sponsor one."

Miller said the drug petitions will be turned in to him at the end of the and that he will send them to State Reps. Eugenia Chapman and Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights and David Regner of Mount Prospect and to State Sen. John Graham of Barrington. He said the TPC hopes to meet with these lawmakers in the near future to discuss the drug situation.

"The parents are not trying to stir up controversy They simply want to show the legislators they are concerned about drugs," said Thomas Shirley, principal at Wheeling High. "Drugs are not a serious problem here, but they could become a problem if pushers are allowed to operate freely."

During the last school year, Wheeling High School sponsored a series of four educational programs aimed at alerting students to the dangers of taking drugs.

The pamphlet quotes extensively from a television program, "The Time of Your Life," saying this is health and family life education for intermediate prepared by BRITE for KQED Instructional Television Service, Grades four, five and six. This series is produced by the educational TV station, not by the school department, said Canrinus.

"Evaluations indicate that from 85 to 95 per cent of parents who have seen the entire 15 programs approve of it for the upper elementary grades," he said.

HOWEVER, he continued, "Our district has deleted this aid from our guide because we prefer to recommend aids which teachers can use at the most appropriate time, rather than be bound by the rigidity of a TV schedule."

The quotations used in the "scare" pamphlet are taken from the teacher's guide, distributed by the producer of the TV programs.

"These quotations are correct," Canrinus said. "It should be kept in mind that the guide is a publication for experienced and trained teachers, most of whom use discussion techniques in subjects."

Talks Continue On Drain

Negotiations are continuing among the principals in the long-standing Cambridge drainage dispute in an effort to avert a trial.

Paul Hamer, Wheeling village attorney, predicted the case would come to trial this summer if settlement effortsa re unsuccessful.

The negotiations are in the form of pretrial conferences held in Judge Daniel Covelli's chambers. Should the suits go to trial, Judge Covelli will preside. Hamer said the four suits have been consolidated for trial purposes.

JUNE 13 is the date of the next conference. Hamer said if a settlement is not reached at this conference a trial date will be set.

"I feel that much progress has been made," Hamer said of the conferences. Representatives from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling and spokesmen for developers in the affected area as well as consulting engineers are attending the meetings.

Hamer said that at the last meeting "an engineering solution for the area had been reached." Financial problems are holding up a settlement.

Engineers presented six possible plans at the meeting. From those, the group chose one. "Final cost of the plan has not been determined," Hamer said.

Gleich Plan OK After All

To the dismay of Palatine officials, recent county board action to deny Elmer Gleich's petition for rezoning of his 66-acre golf course was reversed Monday, and the local developer has the legal go-ahead for his apartment complex.

The county board overturned its action of May 19 when it was discovered the county clerk's office had no record of Palatine's objection. A simple majority vote could approve rezoning of the project without the village's objection on record.

Two weeks ago, commissioners believed a three-fourths vote — or 12 of 15 votes — was necessary to pass the motion to concur with the county zoning board's recommendation to approve rezoning. In a straight party line vote, nine Democrats cast "yes" votes while five Republicans voted against it. It was generally felt the vote didn't carry because it was believed the formal objection was on file.

THE THREE-FOURTHS vote is required when the nearest municipality to proposed rezoning in the county files a statuatory objection which local officials claim they filed.

However, there is no record of Palatine's objection in the county clerk's office, according to County Comr. Charles Bonk.

Armed with a copy of the official objection dated Oct. 10, Village Mgr. Berton Braun Monday attempted to prove an objection had been filed.

He said, "An objection to the project was sent to the county zoning board as well as filing the statuatory objection.

"The zoning board acknowledges that Palatine objected, but somehow there's no record of our statuatory objection, and they were both mailed the same day."

COMR. FLOYD FULLE requested deferral of the matter until an investigation of the county clerk's records (where an offical objection must be filed) could be made, but the motion was defeated by a 9-4 vote.

"More important than zoning now is an objection lost in the county clerk's office," Fulle said, adding hundreds of objections are filed each year.

"Before we rule, the county clerk ought to research his files," Fulle continued.

He argued if the objection shows up later, then the county board will have acted in error.

Bonk, referring to the lost objection, said he was told by the county clerk "this is the first time in 14 years that this has happened."

Asked to recount the village's three stated objections, Braun said since the property is surrounded by corporate village limits, rezoning would constitute spot zoning. The Manager said the village also objected to the high density of the development and that there was no utility system certificated for the area.

"THE PROPERTY is not only surrounded by the village, but by our utility system," Braun said.

After Gleich thought his petition for rezoning was denied in the county, he sought annexation to Palatine.

An annexation petition was presented to the local board of trustees last week and action calling for a public hearing by the village board sometime this month was taken.

It's uncertain whether the local developer will continue to seek annexation, and he was not available for comment. But with only village water and sewer facilities available to the property now, annexation still could be necessary.

STEPHEN M. ROSE Park was dedicated by the Salt Creek Park District Saturday in honor of the 14-year-old boy who died following football practice in September, 1967. Stephen was the first recipient of the park district's sportsmanship award and was most valuable player in the midget football league. Viewing the new plaque in the field house at 530 S. Williams Drive are his parents, Albert and Gladys, and his brother John and sister Sue. See other photo inside today's Herald.

Two Ships Collide

WASHINGTON — The Navy announceed Monday that the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans and an Australian carrier collided during maneuvers southwest of Manila. First reports said the Evans was sliced in two.

The Evans, launched in October, 1944, would normally carry a crew of about 300 men. The carrier, the HMAS Melborne, is a 25,000-ton antisubmarine warfare carrier.

Plea Is Answered

CHICAGO — A father's plea for donations of the rare B-negative blood for his daughter, Susan Hanson, an 18-year-old Northern Illinois University coed, got overwhelming results yesterday.

Hundreds of persons telephoned Ravenswood Hospital and 15 persons went directly there to donate the rare blood type to Miss Hanson, suffering from two rare blood diseases. Miss Hanson is the niece of Doris Grunlee, 328 Beverley Lane, Mount Prospect.

Wishes RFK Alive

LOS ANGELES — Condemned assassin Sirhan B. Sirhan says he wishes his victim, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, could have lived to be President of the United States, but if his death called attention to the Arab plight, it was worth it.

Sirhan made the statements in an interview filmed the day he was transported to San Quentin Prison's death row, the only interview with Sirhan since he was taken into custody June 5, 1968.

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court.

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial.

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible.

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government.

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration.

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans. Sen. Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

Two Are Honored

Palatine Township Saturday paid tribute to two of its young men — one who died in battle in Vietnam and the other described as "just an average boy who was a good son, a good citizen and a good neighbor."

The two young men, who both died while in their teens, were honored in separate ceremonies Saturday.

DAVID B. ARNOLD, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Arnold, 515 W. Palatine Road, was 19 when he was killed in a battle near the Vietnam demilitarized zone in March.

He was a graduate of Fremd High School after attending Stuart Paddock Elementary School and Palatine High School.

Stephen M. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rose, 749 S. Warren Ave., died in September, 1967, following a high school football practice session. He was 14. He had been graduated from Carl Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows and would have entered Palatine High School the week after his death.

"There was nothing heroic, nothing outstanding about Stephen Rose," said Park Commr. Gerald Ahlenius. "He was just the kind of boy who parents — and everyone else — could be very proud of. This dedication is being made to show that all youngsters like him are a pride to others."

STEPHEN HAD participated in the Salt Creek Park District's athletic programs for several years and was recipient of the district's first sportsmanship award.

In his honor, the district renamed its North Park Fieldhouse and grounds "Stephen M. Rose Park."

Mrs. Thomas Hyde, a teacher at Salk School in Rolling Meadows, said Stephen "was a conscientious boy, an excellent student who was a joy to a teacher. His parents are to be commended."

Earlier Saturday, a small group of family and friends watched as the Palatine American Legion presented a flag to Mrs. Otto Arnold in memory of her son.

As the Legion raised the flag on a newly-erected flag pole installed in David Arnold's memory, rain began to fall and Kent Keller, Palatine High School student, played the National Anthem on a trumpet.

"HE WAS A fine young man who had the moral courage to do what he felt was right," said Sgt. Maj. Robert Black of the United States Marine Corps. "People like David Arnold made our country what it is and are keeping it that way."

Bill Hake, president of the Palatine Township Youth Organization, said dedication of the flag and pole at the youth organization's teen center "is our way of expressing our thanks to David and to his family."

One Less Raccoon

There is one less raccoon tipping over garbage cans in the vicinity of Frontage Road and Holly Lane in Rolling Meadows today.

The Public Works Department reported the discovery of a raccoon in one of its "Have-A-Heart" traps last Thursday. Traps were set because area residents complained that stray cats had been tipping over their garbage cans during the night.

But it appears that the cats had a little competition because a raccoon wound up in the trap.

TAKEN IMMEDIATELY to the city's garage, the raccoon was planed inside a cage and fed a diet of (ironically) cat food, bananas and water.

He is resting quietly — until someone tries to touch him, that is. Friend raccoon is awaiting a possible home in a children's barnyard zoo.

So far there haven't been any takers, and according to public works officials, if this continues to be the case, the raccoon will be turned loose in the forest preserve.

Residents of the Frontage Road and Holly Lane area said the caged culprit is probably a member of a large family of raccoons that has been roaming the area.

DON MEYER, of the public works department, said there are about 15 "Have-A-Heart" traps in Rolling Meadows. These are traps that do not harm the animal. The animal walks into the trap and steps on a mechanism that closes the door behind him. Traps come in all sizes and are big enough to hold a large-sized dog.

The cats that residents have been complaining about are usually those that people have turned loose and are now considered wild. According to Meyer, some of the cats are as large as dogs.

In any case, there is one less raccoon tipping over garbage cans today.

Sex Ed Is Topic

A discussion of sex education and family living programs will be presented in the Palatine Fire Station, Slade and Greeley streets, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The program is being presented by some parents of Dist. 15 students who are questioning the district's program. The district does not have an official role in the presentation.

Included in the presentation, according to sponsors, will be the program which has been accepted by the Illinois state board of higher education and endorsed by the American Medical Association.

FAMILY OF DAVID B. Arnold, Palatine boy who was killed in Vietnam in March, stood at attention as the National Anthem was played and a Memorial Flag was raised in his honor Saturday. The flag and flag pole were dedicated at the Palatine Township Youth Organization's teen center on Smith Road. See other picture inside.

Expect Salt Creek Action

Final appropriations committee action on a bill for $350,000 worth of Salt Creek improvements in Rolling Meadows is expected to be taken tomorrow.

With the end of the state legislation session drawing near, Sen. John Graham (R-Barrington), sponsor of the bill, hopes to have it reach the House floor by early next week.

Originally calling for $1.5 million worth of flood improvement work along the east branch of the creek and a $500,000 reappropriation for Rolling Mealows creek work, the bill has been in committee since January.

After several hearings, all but $350,000 was amended out of the bill, causing Palatine's chances for creek improvements this summer to die.

NOW, THE $350,000 is expected to cover the costs of channel improvements from 1,000 feet south of Central Road upstream to Euclid Avenue, according to Graham.

The same work was funded by a bill approved by the 1967 legislative session and signed by the governor, but work never was started and now the money must be re-appropriated by the current session.

Two years ago, creek work in Rolling Meadows was estimated to cost $500,000 but "$350,000 is all the Illinois Division of Waterways will be able to use now" Graham was told by John Guillou, the division's chief engineer.

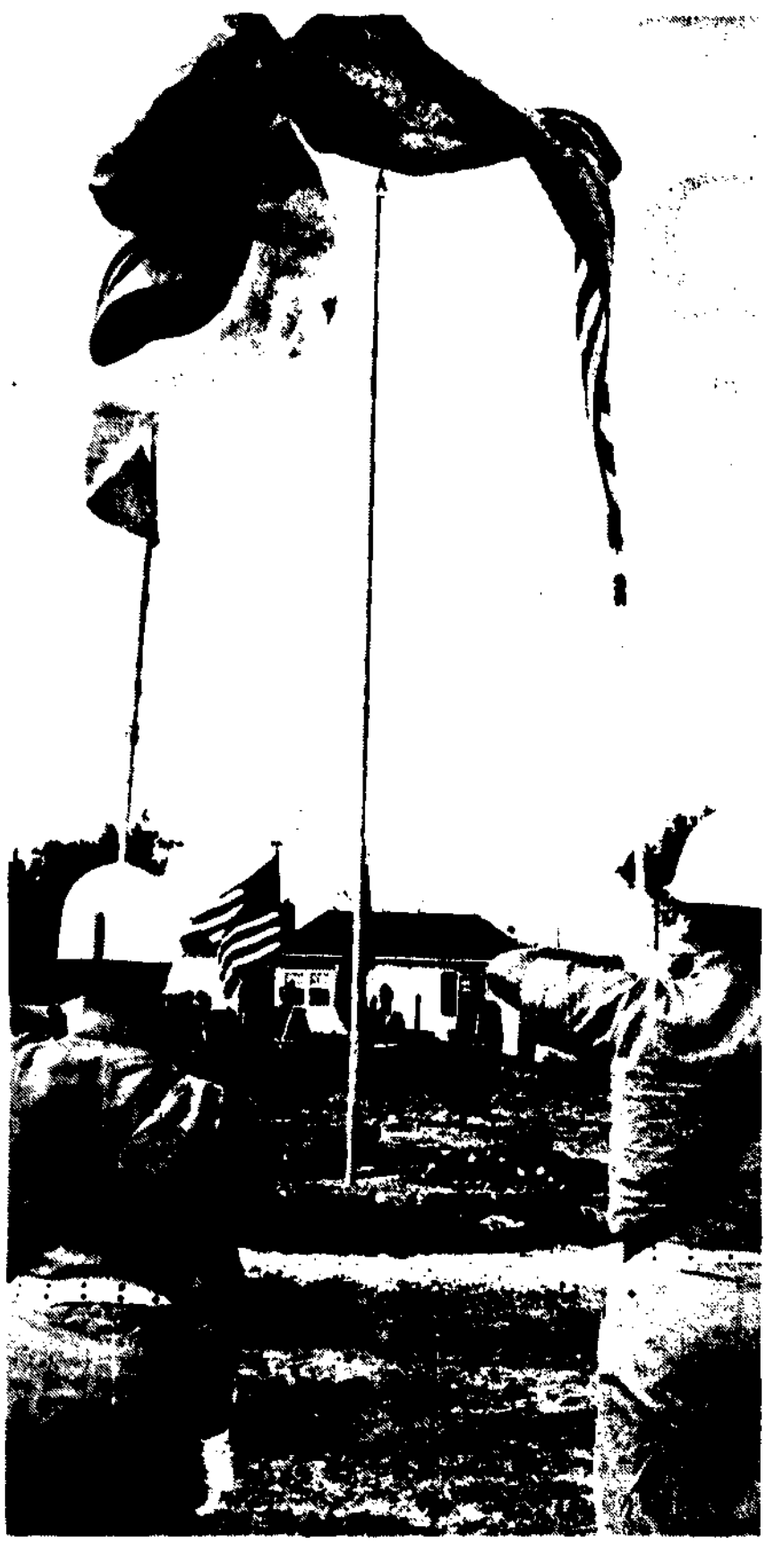
Flood improvement work beyond Euclid Avenue is considered engineeringly impossible this year by the division of waterways, according to Graham.

HIS ORIGINAL bill asked for $1.5 million to bring flood improvement work north from Euclid through the race track to a culvert at Northwest Highway near the Route 53 underpass and beyond.

But the appropriations committee was reluctant to recommend approval of additional expenditures since money approved by the 1967 general assembly had not been spent yet, according to the senator.

Problems in acquiring the necessary rights-of-way along Salt Creek in Rolling Meadows caused the major delay, Graham was told by Guillou.

Most of the necessary easements in Rolling Meadows reportedly have been obtained now.



PALATINE AMERICAN LEGION color guard, in the background, and a local unit of the Civil Air Patrol provided the colors during Saturday morning's dedication of the David B. Mrs. Dawson, as a fellow representative, is in her seventh term in the House. New School Plans Told

The responsibility of building Schaumburg High School from a freshman-sophomore school into a four-year school with a student body of 2,500 belongs to Carl Weimer, presently assistant principal of Palatine High School.

Weimer came to Dist. 21 in 1957 as a general science and biology teacher at Palatine, then became science department chairman.

Schaumburg will open in the middle of 1970-71, with many innovations.

The building will be comprised of three floors, with the lower floor built partially below ground. This, Weimer said, is due to the contour of the land, and will make the school appear somewhat smaller than three floors.

ON THE LOWER floor will be a music suite, kitchen, cafeteria, shops, art department, drafting, sewing and food department. The shops are planned so classes are together and the students are near them, and also for the convenience of night classes.

Rooms are grouped by departmental areas. It is felt that the building will have the best arranged administration and guidance facilities in the district.

On the first floor will be the administrative office and guidance center, with class space for math, business education, a science suite, the foreign language department and nurses' quarters.

The science suite, Weimer said, will have an adjoining corridor with one large storage area. The foreign language department will include a listening lab containing a console unit with tapes and ear phones. Teachers will be able to switch in for individual instruction.

On the second floor will be a large lecture room, seating 150. The room will have a projection screen and sound system. The school will have six small seminars, where teachers will be able to meet with students. Other students can meet in reading rooms, adding to Schaumburg's modern program of team teaching.

THIS CAN break down larger groups of students and give the student a better chance for individual instruction.

Weimer pointed out that the library will have a listening center to make that room a total learning center. The latest audio-visual equipment will be provided.

One area of the school will be undeveloped at the beginning, until Weimer and other school officials see the need for additional classes. This area will have electrical outlets and other necessities, and will be used for limited student activity until the need for classrooms arise.

Weimer said that interviews for teaching positions will take place during the next school year. Counting special service personnel, the initial staff will include about 20 people, Weimer said.

Many Schaumburg youngsters attend Conant High School, the largest of the three schools in Dist. 211. A number of sophomores may be transferred to Schaumburg during their first year to alleviate the crowded Conant school.

Officials anticipate that in two or three years Schaumburg High School will reach the 2,500-student-level as new homes are built in the area.

THE HIGH school will have a full athletic program, although at the beginning, it will play a freshman schedule only. Weimer said the school is hoping to arrange an intramural program, in addition to the regular varsity schedule.

The school will have a football field, two baseball fields, a track, practice fields, and possibly tennis courts. If approved by voters and local government, space is provided for a swimming pool.

A school gym, seating about 2,900, will be constructed, with an indoor circle for track.

An interesting feature of the school, Weimer said, is an elevator, rarely found in a school. Although primarily for freight, it will provide students confined to a wheelchair a means of getting around the building.

"It frequently takes two faculty members to help a student in a wheelchair to get around," Weimer pointed out, and the elevator will be a great convenience for the student and faculty.

"YOU HAVE dreams and aspirations," Weimer said, "but you work with what you have." One area where this is true is the band. "We hope to have a large band," the future principal pointed out, but when the school boundaries are laid-out, "all the musicians may be on the other side."

Wiemer is aware of the need for public relations. Parents are sometimes concerned about the transfer of a student from one school to another, Weimer said, and he is interested in keeping parents informed about the progress of Schaumburg High School.

To Act on Salt Creek

Final appropriations committee action on a bill for $350,000 worth of Salt Creek improvements in Rolling Meadows is expected to be taken tomorrow.

With the end of the state legislation session drawing near, Sen. John Graham (R-Barrington), sponsor of the bill, hopes to have it reach the House floor by early next week.

Originally calling for $1.5 million worth of flood improvement work along the east branch of the creek and a $500,000 reappropriation for Rolling Mealows creek work, the bill has been in committee since January.

After several hearings, all but $350,000 was amended out of the bill, causing Palatine's chances for creek improvements this summer to die.

NOW, THE $350,000 is expected to cover the costs of channel improvements from 1,000 feet south of Central Road upstream to Euclid Avenue, according to Graham.

The same work was funded by a bill approved by the 1967 legislative session and signed by the governor, but work never was started and now the money must be re-appropriated by the current session.

Two years ago, creek work in Rolling Meadows was estimated to cost $500,000 but "$350,000 is all the Illinois Division of Waterways will be able to use now" Graham was told by John Guillou, the division's chief engineer.

Flood improvement work beyond Euclid Avenue is considered engineeringly impossible this year by the division of waterways, according to Graham.

HIS ORIGINAL bill asked for $1.5 million to bring flood improvement work north from Euclid through the race track to a culvert at Northwest Highway near the Route 53 underpass and beyond.

But the appropriations committee was reluctant to recommend approval of additional expenditures since money approved by the 1967 general assembly had not been spent yet, according to the senator.

Problems in acquiring the necessary rights-of-way along Salt Creek in Rolling Meadows caused the major delay, Graham was told by Guillou.

Most of the necessary easements in Rolling Meadows reportedly have been obtained now.

STEPHEN M. ROSE Park was dedicated by the Salt Creek Park District Saturday in honor of the 14-year-old boy who died following football practice in September, 1967. Stephen was the first recipient of the park district's sportsmanship award and was most valuable player in the midget football league. Viewing the new plaque in the field house at 530 S. Williams Drive are his parents, Albert and Gladys, and his brother John and sister Sue. See other photo inside today's Herald.

Two Ships Collide

WASHINGTON — The Navy announceed Monday that the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans and an Australian carrier collided during maneuvers southwest of Manila. First reports said the Evans was sliced in two.

The Evans, launched in October, 1944, would normally carry a crew of about 300 men. The carrier, the HMAS Melborne, is a 25,000-ton antisubmarine warfare carrier.

Plea Is Answered

CHICAGO — A father's plea for donations of the rare B-negative blood for his daughter, Susan Hanson, an 18-year-old Northern Illinois University coed, got overwhelming results yesterday.

Hundreds of persons telephoned Ravenswood Hospital and 15 persons went directly there to donate the rare blood type to Miss Hanson, suffering from two rare blood diseases. Miss Hanson is the niece of Doris Grunlee, 328 Beverley Lane, Mount Prospect.

Wishes RFK Alive

LOS ANGELES — Condemned assassin Sirhan B. Sirhan says he wishes his victim, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, could have lived to be President of the United States, but if his death called attention to the Arab plight, it was worth it.

Sirhan made the statements in an interview filmed the day he was transported to San Quentin Prison's death row, the only interview with Sirhan since he was taken into custody June 5, 1968.

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court.

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial.

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible.

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government.

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration.

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans. Sen. Robert Mitcher, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

Two Are Honored

by ED MURNANE

Palatine Township Saturday paid tribute to two of its young men — one who died in battle in Vietnam and the other described as "just an average boy who was a good son, a good citizen and a good neighbor."

The two young men, who both died while in their teens, were honored in separate ceremonies Saturday.

DAVID B. ARNOLD, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Arnold, 515 W. Palatine Road, was 19 when he was killed in a battle near the Vietnam demilitarized zone in March.

He was a graduate of Fremd High School after attending Stuart Paddock Elementary School and Palatine High School.

Stephen M. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rose, 749 S. Warren Ave., died in September, 1967, following a high school football practice session. He was 14. He had been graduated from Carl Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows and would have entered Palatine High School the week after his death.

"There was nothing heroic, nothing outstanding about Stephen Rose," said Park Commr. Gerald Ahlenius. "He was just the kind of boy who parents — and everyone else — could be very proud of. This dedication is being made to show that all youngsters like him are a pride to others."

STEPHEN HAD participated in the Salt Creek Park District's athletic programs for several years and was recipient of the district's first sportsmanship award.

In his honor, the district renamed its North Park Fieldhouse and grounds "Stephen M. Rose Park."

Mrs. Thomas Hyde, a teacher at Salk School in Rolling Meadows, said Stephen "was a conscientious boy, an excellent student who was a joy to a teacher. His parents are to be commended."

Earlier Saturday, a small group of family and friends watched as the Palatine American Legion presented a flag to Mrs. Otto Arnold in memory of her son.

As the Legion raised the flag on a newly-erected flag pole installed in David Arnold's memory, rain began to fall and Kent Keller, Palatine High School student, played the National Anthem on a trumpet.

"HE WAS A fine young man who had the moral courage to do what he felt was right," said Sgt. Maj. Robert Black of the United States Marine Corps. "People like David Arnold made our country what it is and are keeping it that way."

Bill Hake, president of the Palatine Township Youth Organization, said dedication of the flag and pole at the youth organization's teen center "is our way of expressing our thanks to David and to his family."

FAMILY OF DAVID B. Arnold, Palatine boy who was killed in Vietnam in March, stood at attention as the National Anthem was played and a Memorial Flag was raised in his honor Saturday. The flag and flag pole were dedicated at the Palatine Township Youth Organization's teen center on Smith Road. See other picture inside.

SCRAPING AWAY the residue that accumuleted from last year's swim season at the Rolling Meadows Park District Pool are these two maintenance men. They are putting the final touches on the pool which will be ready for the 1969 swim season.

Fill 'er up, It's Swim Time!

by BOB ZANIC

The maintenance department of the Rolling Meadows Park District is putting the final touches to its 50 meter, six-lane and children's training pools in preparation for the 1969 swimming season.

Park Dir. Dean Hallerud said this year will see the smoothest and best operation yet. He has the same pool manager and crew that he had last year and considers this a great advantage "because as in any operation it is experience that really counts."

THERE WILL BE additions to the pool staff this year, including more instructors.

Hallerud said that a larger staff means a better student-teacher-ratio and that learn-to-swim programs will be increased to five days a week.

The park district is on schedule, program and maintenance-wise, and the sale of season passes and learn-to-swim tags for the summer swim season began last Monday at the district office, 3200 Central Road.

Maintenance is started at the beginning of each year. The rate of progress, especially on the outside facilities, is dependent upon the weather.

All keys and locks are either repaired or replaced before the swim season starts. They are taken apart, oiled and reassembled.

HALLERUD SAID that during one swim meet last year 65 keys were lost.

All of the electrical units inside as well as outside the pool complex are inspected and tested by an electrical contractor.

Toilets and showers are disinfected and repaired, and the floor of the bathhouse is painted, if necessary.

When the weather improves, the pool itself is finally ready to be inspected and maintained. The water, mud and other debris which has collected duling the winter months has to be shoveled and placed into buckets and then hauled out of the pool, one bucket load at a time.

The floor of the pool, once dry, may need several coats of Epoxy resin paint. This year the park department will not have to apply any paint; however, next year it plans to apply one coat.

Once the scum is scraped away, the pool can be washed with acid and then rinsed. All decks, ladders and chairs are inspected and repairel if needed. Underwater lights and tiles are also inspected and repaired.

The park district follows a daily maintenance program throughout the summer; disinfecting showers, testing water, testing filters, etc. It received an AA rating, the highest given, from the state insqection team last year.

THIS SATURDAY the pool will be filled.

Hallerud urged bathers to register now for their season pass and learn-to-swim tags. For further information call the park district at 392-4300.

Two Ships Collide

WASHINGTON — The Navy announceed Monday that the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans and an Australian carrier collided during maneuvers southwest of Manila. First reports said the Evans was sliced in two.

The Evans, launched in October, 1944, would normally carry a crew of about 300 men. The carrier, the HMAS Melborne, is a 25,000-ton antisubmarine warfare carrier.

Plea Is Answered

CHICAGO — A father's plea for donations of the rare B-negative blood for his daughter, Susan Hanson, an 18-year-old Northern Illinois University coed, got overwhelming results yesterday.

Hundreds of persons telephoned Ravenswood Hospital and 15 persons went directly there to donate the rare blood type to Miss Hanson, suffering from two rare blood diseases. Miss Hanson is the niece of Doris Grunlee, 328 Beverley Lane, Mount Prospect.

Wishes RFK Alive

LOS ANGELES — Condemned assassin Sirhan B. Sirhan says he wishes his victim, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, could have lived to be President of the United States, but if his death called attention to the Arab plight, it was worth it.

Sirhan made the statements in an interview filmed the day he was transported to San Quentin Prison's death row, the only interview with Sirhan since he was taken into custody June 5, 1968.

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court.

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial.

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible.

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government.

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration.

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans. Sen. Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

ROBERT NAVARRO, 23 of 1418 S. Fern, Mount Prospect, and John Alejandre, 22, 1811 N. Waterman Ave., Arlington Heights, were killed Sunday when their car left Illinois 83 near U.S. 20 and went down a 47-foot hole. Firemen worked to remove the victims from the pit. According to United Press International, the two deaths brought to 24 the total of Illinois traffic fatalities for the Memorial Day weekend.

Ladd Joins Candidates' List

Bruce Ladd, Donald Rumsfeld's administrative assistant for more than three years in Washington, has tossed another hat in the 13th Congressional seat Republican primary.

Ladd, assistant to the Under Secretary of Commerce, declared his candidacy from Washington, D.C., late last night.

Ladd told Paddock Publications he thought he could win because "I've done my homeowork — I have the charts and maps and know where the votes and money are — and I wouldn't be in this thing if I didn't think I could win."

Ladd, a former managing editor of Paddock Publications, claimed that Rumsfeld and a great number of other Republicans have "shown a little concern of late" that the current contenders for Rumsfeld's vacated seat were not "in the Rumsfeld tradition."

Ladd cited his experience in Washington and his close association with Rumsfeld as making him "well qualified" to succeed Rumsfeld in Congress and to affect an immediate transition rather than needing eight months of on-the-job training. "I've known Don's thinking, working and acting for a number of years," Ladd added.

Ladd was Rumsfeld's administrative assistant in Washington from August, 1965, through February, 1969, when he took his present post under Maurice Stans, Secretary of Commerce.

Cowen for Committeeman?

by DAVID HOYT

Most likely to assume State Rep. Eugene Schlickman's time-consuming and powerful job as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman is one of his longtime political associates, Richard Cowen.

Schlickman announced that he will resign his committeeman post in the heavily Republican township before seeking the 13th District congressional seat vacated when Donald Rumsfeld resigned from the House of Representatives to become director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Cowen, 34, ahd a shot at the committeeman's job in 1966 after filling in for then-committeeman Thomas Houser who was running Charles Percy's bid for the U.S. Senate, but turned it down in order to concentrate on his Loop law practice.

IN ADDITION to his experience as deputy committeeman, and acting committeeman, Cowen is a former president of the Cook County Young Republicans, a member of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization's executive committee, former township attorney and recipient of the Arlington Heights Jaycees' 1968 Distinguished Service Award.

And what's more, Cowen wants the job.

"Yes," he told The Herald, "I would consider it an honor to serve if this is the choice of the executive committee and the precinct captains. But I want to emphasize that if I should not be the choice, I will endorse and support whoever is."

The job will be filled in a two-step process, the first requiring nomination by the Republican Organization's 23-man executive committee and the second a confirming vote by township precinct captains.

Confirmation will be followed by a largely ceremonial appointment by Edmund Kucharski, head of the Cook County Republican Central Committee.

COWEN EXPECTS action by the executive committee within a week. Once the nomination is made, precinct captains will be convened for a confirming vote.

Two of Cowen's most likely opponents for the position say they are not interested. "No," say both James Ryan and Marshall Theroux to becoming committeeman.

Ryan, a deputy of Schlickman's, says that time will not permit him to seek the job, and he endorses Cowen enthusiastically.

Theroux, just elected township assessor, said the job "isn't my cup of tea at this time," and seconded Ryan's enthusiasm for Cowen.

AT LEAST one encouragement to push the nomination through is to deny any chance of opposition forming within the organization.

There is potential for divisiveness, with the more conservative Republicans enjoying a certain base of power in the Wheeling Township Republican organizations.

Whoever is confirmed for Schlickman's job will have to run for the office in the

Cooper Tries Again

Howard Cooper, owner of Farmer Cooper's Restaurant, made his fifth appeal for a liquor license before the Mount Prospect Economic and Industrial Commission last night.

All previous applications for a liquor license at the restaurant, at 303 E. Kensington Road, have been denied. A letter dated May 27 to Mayor Robert Teichert instructed the commission to see if a solution to Cooper's financial dilemma could be found, thus avoiding bankruptcy. Teichert said an empty building would reflect badly on the community.

Cooper's restaurant was the subject of heated debate within village government when the owner claimed he needed a beer license in order to survive as a businessman in the village. Cooper said he wants to avoid bankruptcy because he personally has put everything he owns into the venture and because he is morally commited to his creditors.

"I've made some bad business decisions, but I've done everything humanly possible to save it," said Cooper. The owner said the business has failed because of overcapitalization and poor architectural design inside.

He described the inside as creating a "cold and sterile atmosphere." Cooper said he has put $60,000 of his own money into the operation, mostly in research. He also said that $350,000 was sunk into the restaurant, of which he still owes about $200,000.

Cooper maintains that if he can get $178,000 cash settlement and release from his creditors by mortgaging the property, he can refinance the restaurant and begin a Barrel of Beer company, another operation he hopes to franchise.

Cooper said, however, that in addition to beer he would like to sell Irish coffee, which would require him to get a full liquor license, not just a beer license.

The commission said it could not make a recommendation until it received a current notarized financial statement from the restaurant prepared by a CPA.

Damage Car Paint

Robert Herman, 609 S. Elm, Henry Thias, 606 S. Maple and Salvatore Santoro, 301 E. Berkshire, all reported their cars had been defaced.

James Peterson, 607 S. Maple, reported the front window of his home had been decorated with paint.

3 Bid on Central

Three bids on Central School were received and acknowledged by Elk Grove Township School Trustees last night, and the acceptance decision will be up to members of the school board.

Top bidder was Matt Taylor, Arlington Heights, representing a group of area businessmen and attorneys.

The Taylor combine bid $426,000 for the school site, said to be the largest piece of downtown property available in the suburbs.

This bid is well above the $400,000 asking price set by Dist. 57.

Second highest bidder was the Mount Prospect State Bank as trustee at $410,411, and Kenroy Builders, long rumored to be interested in the site, trailed with $406,752.

FRED LAMBKIN, president of the school trustees, officially announced the bids were closed at 8 p.m. and the trustees adjourned to a brief executive session with the Dist. 57 attorney, Joseph Murphy.

The trustees, who are legal title holders to school land, approved all bids and referred them to the school board.

Dist. 57 board members have bought 14 days to consider the bids by payment of $10 fee to all bidders.

The trustees who include Ed Conlon, Joseph Jennings and Harold Erlandson, clerk, told The Herald there is a lengthy rider on the Taylor bid that must be considered by the school board.

Murphy said the terms of the rider are intricate and can't be stated for press release until they are reviewed and condensed.

A referendum to earn additional funds to add to Lincoln Junior High is tentatively scheduled for June 14. The school district plans to move the Central Junior High students to Lincoln as soon as an addition is completed.

Dr. Donald Thomas, superintendent of School Dist. 59, submitted his resignation last night.

The action came at the beginning of a regularly scheduled board meeting at Admiral Richard E. Byrd School, Elk Grove Village.

Thomas' resignation came after months of criticism of the school district from parents and civic groups. Thomas said his resignation is based on his knowledge that he no longer has the full support of all seven members of the board.

The superintendent's resignation will become effective July 1. He will continue as a consultant to the district for a full year to fill out the time left on his present contract. Under terms of the contract, Thomas will be paid his full salary, in excess of $20,000 a year, and remain on call to the school board.

SCHOOL BOARD spokesmen would make no announcement on the appointment of an acting superintendent. Dr. Allen Sparks, president of the board, said an announcement would be made soon. Although no confirmation was possible, normal exchange of reigns of the district would go to assistant superintendent Richard Vlasak.

In presenting his resignation, Thomas said he supports the school board's acceptance of his resignation because "it is the right decision for this district at this time."

Reaction from nearly 200 persons in attendance at the meeting was mixed. Thomas' resignation brought a smattering of applause from one side of the room but others in the audience expressed their disapproval of the resignation. Several members of the audience attempted to get each of the seven board members to disclose his personal feelings about Thomas' qualifications. The board exercised its right to remain silent on the matter.

George Schreiber, head of the Forest View Parents Study Committee, a dissident group opposed to Thomas, said he fully endorsed the board's action regarding Thomas and said his group will continue to support the board as it has in the past. Schreiber, who mounted a sharp attack against the superintendent's policies, said it is time for the board to heal the wounds in the district.

Thomas made no comment on his future plans but he has a full year without loss of pay to acquire a new position.

Teachers Vote on Pay Friday

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Teachers in School Dist 59 will earn salaries between $7,000 and $14,770 next year if they ratify a package on which both the board of education and Teachers Council leadership agreed last week.

Friday is the date set for voting on the measure, and passage is expected

Details of the package were released yesterday evening by Supt Dr. Donald Thomas.

IN ADDITION TO a provision of 14 "steps" each representing a year's experience, the pay scale also includes increase provisions for educational background in six increments

Three different contracts are being offered, ranging from a basic teaching proposal through "Career Services" contract provisions, which in effect result in year round employment.

Enhancement of fringe benefits was a major factor in acceptance of the contract by district teachers, the agreement reached was based on a schedule of only $100 higher than one which teachers rejected last month.

Most significant in the contract is the statement, "Historically and philosophically the board of education is committed to make every effort to allocate extra funds to decrease class size. The board of education pledges to continue to support this program."

Additionally, "The Teachers Council may enter an alleged grievance for any teacher claiming to be given an intolerable teaching load. An intolerable teaching load is defined as one that is in severe opposition to current education research."

THOSE TWO POINTS were dear ones to teachers and represent a compromise on one of the major factors in briefly deadlocked talks.

The teachers wanted limitations of class size written into the contracts, something the board of education said it could not do. Instead, both compromised on the point and kept the statement general enough to avoid problems with monetary limitations.

Increases in sick and personal business leave allocations was coupled with a doubling of insurance policies available at no cost to faculty members.

A point won by teachers was the insertion of the statement, "No teacher shall be transferred for discriminatory reasons. Prior to being transferred, the teacher shall have a conference with the (school) principal

PROCEDURES FOR grievances from teachers, as well as operation of a "sick leave bank" were also written into the contracts.

But perhaps the most important in years to come will be the recognition of the School Dist. 59 Teachers Council as sole bargaining representative "over employment conditions, consideration for services rendered, for all certified teachers except substitute teachers and certified teachers assigned to administrative positions."

While it may not seem significant in the context of School Dist. 59, the recognition of the Teachers' Council as a formal bargaining agent for teachers represents a small victory for professional teacher groups in contrast to teacher unions, mostly under the American Federation of Teachers banner.

7 Scouts Receive Church's Award

A Laving Rosary and Marian award ceremony was held at St Emily's Church in Mount Prospect with 60 Brownies and Junior Girl Scouts present.

The ceremony culminated with the awarding of the Marian Medal to seven Cadet Girl Scouts of Troop 277. A reception followed in the school hall.

THE MARIAN Medal is a spiritual award to help girls become better members of the faith. A minimum of two years of work is required to achieve this award.

The girls who earned the Marian Medal were Terry Bauer, Peggy Karberg, Donna Kubetz, Peggy Lauf, Janine Poznanski, Barbara Sandacz and Mary Shanahan.

Cowen New Committeeman?

spring of 1970 in an election open to all registered township Republicans.

Other names being discussed for the office include Fred Yonkers, vice chairman of the Republican Organization; Dwight Walton, newly elected Arlington Heights trustee, and John Gillen, president of the Township Republican Club.

UPON HIS reelection as state representative in 1968, before any hint of the Rumsfeld resignation, Schlickman announced that he would seek to retain the committeeman's job in 1970.

Resigning his base of power could be a temporary thing for Schlickman, with the possibility of his taking over again next year should he fail in his congressional bid.

"But," he has been quoted as saying, "if I run for Congress, that will be the last fling." And he evidently wants his hands free to dance.

Paul F. Demmert

Air Force Academy To Graduate Demmert

Paul F. Demmert, son of retired USAF Lt. Col. and Mrs. William R. Demmert of 105 S. Hi-Lusi Ave., Mount Prospect, is a member of this year's U.S. Air Force Academy graduating class.

He will receive his bachelor of science degree and be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force June 5.

Cadet Demmert majored in engineering sciences and received special recognition at the academy by his appointment as a squadron element leader with the rank of cadet first lieutenant.

He has been selected for training as a weather officer at Pennsylvania State University.

The cadet is a 1965 graduate of St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights.

For Happy Births

Lucina was the ancient Roman goddess of childbirth.

'Scare' Sex Flyers Not in Context

A Herald check of "scare" material being circulated in the suburban area using excerpts from sex education material reportedly in use in the San Francisco School district reveals that the items presented were taken out of context.

"The fact that the near-identical flyer appears in widely scattered areas appears to indicate that a well organized and financed group on the national level is triggering a movement," said George Canrinus, coordinator of health, physical education, athletics and recreation for the San Francisco Unified School District.

The two-page pamphlet, circulated locally throughout Dist. 21, has been widely circulated in San Francisco as well as in other parts of the country, Canrinus said.

"WE HAVE observed that in each case the format and content is practically identical, except for the differences in the names of local school members and the local organization sponsoring the 'anti' campaign," Canrinus told the Herald.

The document being circulated in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, is "almost entirely out of context, irrelevant, or untrue" said Canrinus.

Canrinus refuted statements in the pamphlet point-by-point for the Herald.

Edward Kemmett, president of the San Francisco School Board, and one of the two members voting against the Health and Family Life curriculum has expressed disapproval of the pamphlet, which quotes him, according to Canrinus.

Adolfo de Urioste, the other dissenter who is described as casting a "no" vote, only opposed the K-3 program, not the fourth-through-twelfth-grade program, he said.

The slides taken from the Time-Life Corp. filmstrip, "How Babies are Made," were among 40 slides depicting plant and animal reproduction. The picture of a couple in bed was not used in the San Francisco schools, although it is used in the pamphlet now being circulated in this area.

"WE DID NOT purchase additional copies of 'How Babies are Made' because of a price increase and because other aids were preferred by our teachers," Canrinus said.

The book from which quotes are excerpted is "A Doctor Talks to Five to Eight-Year-Olds," Budlong Press, Chicago, and is "a reference recommended by many medical authorities, including our Medical Society, Canrinus stated.

The pamphlet quotes extensively from a television program, "The Time of Your Life," saying this is health and family life education for intermediate prepared by BRITE for KQED Instructional Television Service, Grades four, five and six. This series is produced by the educational TV station, not by the school department, said Canrinus.

"Evaluations indicate that from 85 to 95 per cent of parents who have seen the entire 15 programs approve of it for the upper elementary grades," he said.

HOWEVER, he continued, "Our district has deleted this aid from our guide because we prefer to recommend aids which teachers can use at the most appropriate time, rather than be bound by the rigidity of a TV schedule."

The quotations used in the "scare" pamphlet are taken from the teacher's guide, distributed by the producer of the TV programs.

"These quotations are correct," Canrinus said. "It should be kept in mind that the guide is a publication for experienced and trained teachers, most of whom use discussion techniques in subjects"

McGinnis studied drawing at the University of Nebraska and later dropped out of college to be privately tutored by Francoise Andre who encouraged his return to college.

Police cleared the air, at least temporarily

While Heruk agreed to clean up the garbage he dumped, the Memmotts' decided not to sign a complaint against their neighbor for littering.

Two Ships Collide

WASHINGTON — The Navy announceed Monday that the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans and an Australian carrier collided during maneuvers southwest of Manila. First reports said the Evans was sliced in two.

The Evans, launched in October, 1944, would normally carry a crew of about 300 men. The carrier, the HMAS Melborne, is a 25,000-ton antisubmarine warfare carrier.

Plea Is Answered

CHICAGO — A father's plea for donations of the rare B-negative blood for his daughter, Susan Hanson, an 18-year-old Northern Illinois University coed, got overwhelming results yesterday.

Hundreds of persons telephoned Ravenswood Hospital and 15 persons went directly there to donate the rare blood type to Miss Hanson, suffering from two rare blood diseases. Miss Hanson is the niece of Doris Grunlee, 328 Beverley Lane, Mount Prospect.

Wishes RFK Alive

LOS ANGELES — Condemned assassin Sirhan B. Sirhan says he wishes his victim, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, could have lived to be President of the United States, but if his death called attention to the Arab plight, it was worth it.

Sirhan made the statements in an interview filmed the day he was transported to San Quentin Prison's death row, the only interview with Sirhan since he was taken into custody June 5, 1968.

Order Civilian Trial

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court declared yesterday that a serviceman accused of a peacetime nonmilitary crime in the United States while off base and off duty must be tried by a civilian court.

The ruling sharply cut down on the claim of military authorities that they have optional jurisdiction to try such cases by court martial.

Must Tell of Welfare

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations issued yesterday require states to tell the estimated 100,000 to 200,000 persons who had been denied welfare because of residency laws that they are now eligible.

The regulations may increase the nation's cost of welfare payments by $140 million to $200 million a year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, to be shared by the states and the federal government.

Asks Longer OEO Life

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Monday to extend for two years the life of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), the anti-poverty agency he inherited from the Johnson administration.

Originally Nixon had asked for only a one-year extension. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Republican congressman from Illinois, told a House Education and Labor Committee hearing the two-year request "is not a commitment simply to continue present programs."

Delay Tax Mandate

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to require proof of payment of personal property tax to receive an automobile license was postponed in the Senate yesterday when it fell four votes short of the 30 needed to pass.

The bill was supported by downstate senators and opposed by Chicago Democrats and Republicans. Sen. Robert Mitchler, R-Oswego, sponsor of the bill, estimated that $77 million in property taxes was lost in 1967 mainly through underassessment and undercollection in autos.

ROBERT NAVARRO, 23 of 1418 S. Fern, Mount Prospect, and John Alejandre, 22, 1811 N. Waterman Ave., Arlington Heights, were killed Sunday when their car left Illinois 83 near U.S. 20 and went down a 47-foot hole. Firemen worked to remove the victims from the pit. According to United Press International, the two deaths brought to 24 the total of Illinois traffic fatalities for the Memorial Day weekend.

Ladd Joins Candidates' List

Bruce Ladd, Donald Rumsfeld's administrative assistant for more than three years in Washington, has tossed another hat in the 13th Congressional seat Republican primary.

Ladd, assistant to the Under Secretary of Commerce, declared his candidacy from Washington, D.C., late last night.

Ladd told Paddock Publications he thought he could win because "I've done my homeowork — I have the charts and maps and know where the votes and money are — and I wouldn't be in this thing if I didn't think I could win."

Ladd, a former managing editor of Paddock Publications, claimed that Rumsfeld and a great number of other Republicans have "shown a little concern of late" that the current contenders for Rumsfeld's vacated seat were not "in the Rumsfeld tradition."

Ladd cited his experience in Washington and his close association with Rumsfeld as making him "well qualified" to succeed Rumsfeld in Congress and to affect an immediate transition rather than needing eight months of on-the-job training. "I've known Don's thinking, working and acting for a number of years," Ladd added.

Ladd was Rumsfeld's administrative assistant in Washington from August, 1965, through February, 1969, when he took his present post under Maurice Stans, Secretary of Commerce.

Cowen for Committeeman?

by DAVID HOYT

Most likely to assume State Rep. Eugene Schlickman's time-consuming and powerful job as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman is one of his longtime political associates, Richard Cowen.

Schlickman announced that he will resign his committeeman post in the heavily Republican township before seeking the 13th District congressional seat vacated when Donald Rumsfeld resigned from the House of Representatives to become director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Cowen, 34, ahd a shot at the committeeman's job in 1966 after filling in for then-committeeman Thomas Houser who was running Charles Percy's bid for the U.S. Senate, but turned it down in order to concentrate on his Loop law practice.

IN ADDITION to his experience as deputy committeeman, and acting committeeman, Cowen is a former president of the Cook County Young Republicans, a member of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization's executive committee, former township attorney and recipient of the Arlington Heights Jaycees' 1968 Distinguished Service Award.

And what's more, Cowen wants the job.

"Yes," he told The Herald, "I would consider it an honor to serve if this is the choice of the executive committee and the precinct captains. But I want to emphasize that if I should not be the choice, I will endorse and support whoever is."

The job will be filled in a two-step process, the first requiring nomination by the Republican Organization's 23-man executive committee and the second a confirming vote by township precinct captains.

Confirmation will be followed by a largely ceremonial appointment by Edmund Kucharski, head of the Cook County Republican Central Committee.

COWEN EXPECTS action by the executive committee within a week. Once the nomination is made, precinct captains will be convened for a confirming vote.

Two of Cowen's most likely opponents for the position say they are not interested. "No," say both James Ryan and Marshall Theroux to becoming committeeman.

Ryan, a deputy of Schlickman's, says that time will not permit him to seek the job, and he endorses Cowen enthusiastically.

Theroux, just elected township assessor, said the job "isn't my cup of tea at this time," and seconded Ryan's enthusiasm for Cowen.

AT LEAST one encouragement to push the nomination through is to deny any chance of opposition forming within the organization.

There is potential for divisiveness, with the more conservative Republicans enjoying a certain base of power in the Wheeling Township Republican organizations.

Whoever is confirmed for Schlickman's job will have to run for the office in the

Cooper Tries Again

Howard Cooper, owner of Farmer Cooper's Restaurant, made his fifth appeal for a liquor license before the Mount Prospect Economic and Industrial Commission last night.

All previous applications for a liquor license at the restaurant, at 303 E. Kensington Road, have been denied. A letter dated May 27 to Mayor Robert Teichert instructed the commission to see if a solution to Cooper's financial dilemma could be found, thus avoiding bankruptcy. Teichert said an empty building would reflect badly on the community.

Cooper's restaurant was the subject of heated debate within village government when the owner claimed he needed a beer license in order to survive as a businessman in the village. Cooper said he wants to avoid bankruptcy because he personally has put everything he owns into the venture and because he is morally commited to his creditors.

"I've made some bad business decisions, but I've done everything humanly possible to save it," said Cooper. The owner said the business has failed because of overcapitalization and poor architectural design inside.

He described the inside as creating a "cold and sterile atmosphere." Cooper said he has put $60,000 of his own money into the operation, mostly in research. He also said that $350,000 was sunk into the restaurant, of which he still owes about $200,000.

Cooper maintains that if he can get $178,000 cash settlement and release from his creditors by mortgaging the property, he can refinance the restaurant and begin a Barrel of Beer company, another operation he hopes to franchise.

Cooper said, however, that in addition to beer he would like to sell Irish coffee, which would require him to get a full liquor license, not just a beer license.

The commission said it could not make a recommendation until it received a current notarized financial statement from the restaurant prepared by a CPA.

Damage Car Paint

Robert Herman, 609 S. Elm, Henry Thias, 606 S. Maple and Salvatore Santoro, 301 E. Berkshire, all reported their cars had been defaced.

James Peterson, 607 S. Maple, reported the front window of his home had been decorated with paint.

3 Bid on Central

Three bids on Central School were received and acknowledged by Elk Grove Township School Trustees last night, and the acceptance decision will be up to members of the school board.

Top bidder was Matt Taylor, Arlington Heights, representing a group of area businessmen and attorneys.

The Taylor combine bid $426,000 for the school site, said to be the largest piece of downtown property available in the suburbs.

This bid is well above the $400,000 asking price set by Dist. 57.

Second highest bidder was the Mount Prospect State Bank as trustee at $410,411, and Kenroy Builders, long rumored to be interested in the site, trailed with $406,752.

FRED LAMBKIN, president of the school trustees, officially announced the bids were closed at 8 p.m. and the trustees adjourned to a brief executive session with the Dist. 57 attorney, Joseph Murphy.

The trustees, who are legal title holders to school land, approved all bids and referred them to the school board.

Dist. 57 board members have bought 14 days to consider the bids by payment of $10 fee to all bidders.

The trustees who include Ed Conlon, Joseph Jennings and Harold Erlandson, clerk, told The Herald there is a lengthy rider on the Taylor bid that must be considered by the school board.

Murphy said the terms of the rider are intricate and can't be stated for press release until they are reviewed and condensed.

A referendum to earn additional funds to add to Lincoln Junior High is tentatively scheduled for June 14. The school district plans to move the Central Junior High students to Lincoln as soon as an addition is completed.

Dr. Donald Thomas, superintendent of School Dist. 59, submitted his resignation last night.

The action came at the beginning of a regularly scheduled board meeting at Admiral Richard E. Byrd School, Elk Grove Village.

Thomas' resignation came after months of criticism of the school district from parents and civic groups. Thomas said his resignation is based on his knowledge that he no longer has the full support of all seven members of the board.

The superintendent's resignation will become effective July 1. He will continue as a consultant to the district for a full year to fill out the time left on his present contract. Under terms of the contract, Thomas will be paid his full salary, in excess of $20,000 a year, and remain on call to the school board.

SCHOOL BOARD spokesmen would make no announcement on the appointment of an acting superintendent. Dr. Allen Sparks, president of the board, said an announcement would be made soon. Although no confirmation was possible, normal exchange of reigns of the district would go to assistant superintendent Richard Vlasak.

In presenting his resignation, Thomas said he supports the school board's acceptance of his resignation because "it is the right decision for this district at this time."

Reaction from nearly 200 persons in attendance at the meeting was mixed. Thomas' resignation brought a smattering of applause from one side of the room but others in the audience expressed their disapproval of the resignation. Several members of the audience attempted to get each of the seven board members to disclose his personal feelings about Thomas' qualifications. The board exercised its right to remain silent on the matter.

George Schreiber, head of the Forest View Parents Study Committee, a dissident group opposed to Thomas, said he fully endorsed the board's action regarding Thomas and said his group will continue to support the board as it has in the past. Schreiber, who mounted a sharp attack against the superintendent's policies, said it is time for the board to heal the wounds in the district.

Thomas made no comment on his future plans but he has a full year without loss of pay to acquire a new position.

Teachers Vote on Pay Friday

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Teachers in School Dist 59 will earn salaries between $7,000 and $14,770 next year if they ratify a package on which both the board of education and Teachers Council leadership agreed last week.

Friday is the date set for voting on the measure, and passage is expected

Details of the package were released yesterday evening by Supt. Dr Donald Thomas.

IN ADDITION TO a provision of 14 "steps" each representing a year's experience, the pay scale also includes increase provisions for educational background in six increments

Three different contracts are being offered, ranging from a basic teaching proposal through "Career Services" contract provisions, which in effect result in year round employment

Enhancement of fringe benefits was a major factor in acceptance of the contract by district teachers: the agreement reached was based on a schedule of only $100 higher than one which teachers rejected last month.

Most significant in the contract is the statement, "Historically and philosophically the board of education is committed to make every effort to allocate extra funds to decrease class size The board of education pledges to continue to support this program."

Additionally, "The Teachers Council may enter an alleged grievance for any teacher claiming to be given an intolerable teaching load. An intolerable teaching load is defined as one that is in severe opposition to current education research."

THOSE TWO POINTS were dear ones to teachers and represent a compromise on one of the major factors in briefly deadlocked talks.

The teachers wanted limitations of class size written into the contracts, something the board of education said it could not do. Instead, both compromised on the point and kept the statement general enough to avoid problems with monetary limitations.

Increases in sick and personal business leave allocations was coupled with a doubling of insurance policies available at no cost to faculty members.

A point won by teachers was the insertion of the statement, "No teacher shall be transferred for discriminatory reasons. Prior to being transferred, the teacher shall have a conference with the (school) principal.

PROCEDURES FOR grievances from teachers, as well as operation of a "sick leave bank" were also written into the contracts.

But perhaps the most important in years to come will be the recognition of the School Dist. 59 Teachers Council as sole bargaining representative "over employment conditions, consideration for services rendered, for all certiifed teachers except substitute teachers and certified teachers assigned to administrative positions."

While it may not seem significant in the context of School Dist. 59, the recognition of the Teachers' Council as a formal bargaining agent for teachers represents a small victory for professional teacher groups in contrast to teacher unions, mostly under the American Federation of Teachers banner.

7 Scouts Receive Church's Award

A Living Rosary and Marian award ceremony was held at St Emily's Church in Mount Prospect with 60 Brownies and Junior Girl Scouts present

The ceremony culminated with the awarding of the Marian Medal to seven Cadet Girl Scouts of Troop 277. A reception followed in the school hall.

THE MARIAN Medal is a spiritual award to help girls become better members of the faith. A minimum of two years of work is required to achieve this award.

The girls who earned the Marian Medal were Terry Bauer, Peggy Karberg, Donna Kubetz, Peggy Lauf, Janine Poznanski, Barbara Sandacz and Mary Shanahan.

spring of 1970 in an election open to all registered township Republicans.

Other names being discussed for the office include Fred Yonkers, vice chairman of the Republican Organization; Dwight Walton, newly elected Arlington Heights trustee, and John Gillen, president of the Township Republican Club.

UPON HIS reelection as state representative in 1968, before any hint of the Rumsfeld resignation, Schlickman announced that he would seek to retain the committeeman's job in 1970.

Resigning his base of power could be a temporary thing for Schlickman, with the possibility of his taking over again next year should he fail in his congressional bid.

"But," he has been quoted as saying, "If I run for Congress, that will be the last fling." And he evidently wants his hands free to dance.

Air Force Academy To Graduate Demmert

Paul F. Demmert, son of retired USAF Lt. Col. and Mrs. William R. Demmert of 105 S. Hi-Lusi Ave., Mount Prospect, is a member of this year's U.S. Air Force Academy graduating class.

He will receive his bachelor of science degree and be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force June 5.

Cadet Demmert majored in engineering sciences and received special recognition at the academy by his appointment as a squadron element leader with the rank of cadet first lieutenant.

He has been selected for training as a weather officer at Pennsylvania State University.

The cadet is a 1965 graduate of St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights.

'Scare' Sex Flyers Not in Context

A Herald check of "scare" material being circulated in the suburban area using excerpts from sex education material reportedly in use in the San Francisco School district reveals that the items presented were taken out of context.

"The fact that the near-identical flyer appears in widely scattered areas appears to indicate that a well organized and financed group on the national level is triggering a movement," said George Canrinus, coordinator of health, physical education, athletics and recreation for the San Francisco Unified School District.

The two-page pamphlet, circulated locally throughout Dist. 21, has been widely circulated in San Francisco as well as in other parts of the country, Canrinus said.

"WE HAVE observed that in each case the format and content is practically identical, except for the differences in the names of local school members and the local organization sponsoring the 'anti' campaign," Canrinus told the Herald.

The document being circulated in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, is "almost entirely out of context, irrelevant, or untrue" said Canrinus.

Canrinus refuted statements in the pamphlet point-by-point for the Herald.

Edward Kemmett, president of the San Francisco School Board, and one of the two members voting against the Health and Family Life curriculum has expressed disapproval of the pamphlet, which quotes him, according to Canrinus.

Adolfo de Urioste, the other dissenter who is described as casting a "no" vote, only opposed the K-3 program, not the fourth-through-twelfth-grade program, he said.

The slides taken from the Time-Life Corp. filmstrip, "How Babies are Made," were among 40 slides depicting plant and animal reproduction. The picture of a couple in bed was not used in the San Francisco schools, although it is used in the pamphlet now being circulated in this area.

"WE DID NOT purchase additional copies of 'How Babies are Made' because of a price increase and because other aids were preferred by our teachers," Canrinus said.

The book from which quotes are excerpted is "A Doctor Talks to Five to Eight-Year-Olds," Budlong Press, Chicago, and is "a reference recommended by many medical authorities, including our Medical Society, Canrinus stated.

The pamphlet quotes extensively from a television program, "The Time of Your Life," saying this is health and family life education for intermediate prepared by BRITE for KQED Instructional Television Service, Grades four, five and six. This series is produced by the educational TV station, not by the school department, said Canrinus.

"Evaluations indicate that from 85 to 95 per cent of parents who have seen the entire 15 programs approve of it for the upper elementary grades," he said.

HOWEVER, he continued, "Our district has deleted this aid from our guide because we prefer to recommend aids which teachers can use at the most appropriate time, rather than be bound by the rigidity of a TV schedule."

The quotations used in the "scare" pamphlet are taken from the teacher's guide, distributed by the producer of the TV programs.

"These quotations are correct," Canrinus said. "It should be kept in mind that the guide is a publication for experienced and trained teachers, most of whom use discussion techniques in subjects."

He is Thomas McGinnis of Mount Prospect, who calls his ink and oil sketches "Reverberation in Line and Form."

McGinnis studied drawing at the University of Nebraska and later dropped out of college to be privately tutored by Francoise Andre who encouraged his return to college.

Mrs. Norman C Memmott, 709 N Wilshire, told police that at 1 30 a m Thursday her neighbor, Michael Herak, dumped a whole can of garbage on her lawn

Herak told police he dumped the garbage to repay the Memmott family for dumping empty beer cans and other debris on his lawn Herak lives across the street at 708 N. Wilshire.

Police cleared the air, at least temporarily.

While Herak agreed to clean up the garbage he dumped, the Memmotts' decided not to sign a complaint against their neighbor for littering.

ROBERT NAVARRO, 23 of 1418 S. Fern, Mount Prospect, and John Alejandre, 22, 1811 N. Waterman Ave., Arlington Heights, were killed Sunday when their car left Illinois 83 near U.S. 20 and went down a 47-foot hole. Firemen worked to remove the victims from the pit. According to United Press International, the two deaths brought to 24 the total of Illinois traffic fatalities for the Memorial Day weekend.

Dr Donald Thomas, superintendent of School Dist 59, submitted his resignation last night

The action came at the beginning of a regularly scheduled board meeting at Admiral Richard E Byrd School, Elk Grove Village

Thomas' resignation came after months of criticism of the school district from parents and civic groups Thomas said his resignation is based on his knowledge that he no longer has the full support of all seven members of the board

The superintendent's resignation will become effective July 1 He will continue as a consultant to the district for a full year to fill out the time left on his present contract Under terms of the contract Thomas will be paid his full salary in excess of $20 000 a year, and remain on call to the school board

SCHOOL BOARD spokesmen would make no announcement on the appointment of an acting superintendent Dr Allen Sparks, president of the board said an announcement would be made soon Although no confirmation was possible, normal exchange of reigns of the district would go to assistant superintendent Richard Vlasak

In presenting his resignation Thomas said he supports the school board's acceptance of his resignation because "it is the right decision for this district at this time"

Reaction from nearly 200 persons in attendance at the meeting was mixed Thomas' resignation brought a smattering of applause from one side of the room but others in the audience expressed their disapproval of the resignation Several members of the audience attempted to get each of the seven board members to disclose his personal feelings about Thomas qualifications The board exercised its right to remain silent on the matter

George Schreiber, head of the Forest View Parents Study Committee, a dissident group opposed to Thomas, said he fully endorsed the board's action regarding Thomas and said his group will continue to support the board as it has in the past Schreiber, who mounted a sharp attack against the superintendent's policies said it is time for the board to heal the wounds in the district

Thomas made no comment on his future plans but he has a full year without loss of pay to acquire a new position

Ladd Joins Candidates' List

Bruce Ladd, Donald Rumsfeld's administrative assistant for more than three years in Washington, has tossed another hat in the 13th Congressional seat Republican primary

Ladd, assistant to the Under Secretary of Commerce, declared his candidacy from Washington, D C , late last night

Ladd told Paddock Publications he thought he could win because "I've done my homework — I have the charts and maps and know where the votes and money are — and I wouldn't be in this thing if I didn't think I could win "

Ladd, a former managing editor of Paddock Publications, claimed that Rumsfeld and a great number of other Republicans have "shown a little concern of late" that the current contenders for Rumsfeld's vacated seat were not "in the Rumsfeld tradition "

Ladd cited his experience in Washington and his close association with Rumsfeld as making him "well qualified" to succeed Rumsfeld in Congress and to affect an immediate transition rather than needing eight months of on-the-job training "I've known Don's thinking, working and acting for a number of years," Ladd added

Ladd was Rumsfeld's administrative assistant in Washington from August, 1965, through February, 1969, when he took his present post under Maurice Stans, Secretary of Commerce

Cowen for Committeeman?

by DAVID HOYT

Most likely to assume State Rep Eugene Schlickman's time-consuming and powerful job as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman is one of his longtime political associates, Richard Cowen

Schlickman announced that he will resign his committeeman post in the heavily Republican township before seeking the 13th District congressional seat vacated when Donald Rumsfeld resigned from the House of Representatives to become director of the Office of Economic Opportunity

Cowen, 34, ahd a shot at the committeeman s job in 1966 after filling in for then-committeeman Thomas Houser who was running Charles Percy's bid for the U S Senate, but turned it down in order to concentrate on his Loop law practice

IN ADDITION to his experience as deputy committeeman, and acting committeeman, Cowen is a former president of the Cook County Young Republicans, a member of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization's executive committee, former township attorney and recipient of the Arlington Heights Jaycees' 1968 Distinguished Service Award

And what's more, Cowen wants the job

"Yes," he told The Herald, "I would consider it an honor to serve if this is the choice of the executive committee and the precinct captains But I want to emphasize that if I should not be the choice, I will endorse and support whoever is "

The job will be filled in a two-step process, the first requiring nomination by the Republican Organization's 23-man executive committee and the second a confirming vote by township precinct captains

Confirmation will be followed by a largely ceremonial appointment by Edmund Kucharski, head of the Cook County Republican Central Committee

COWEN EXPECTS action by the executive committee within a week. Once the nomination is made, precinct captains will be convened for a confirming vote

Two of Cowen's most likely opponents for the position say they are not interested "No," say both James Ryan and Marshall Theroux to becoming committeeman

Ryan, a deputy of Schlickman's, says that time will not permit him to seek the job, and he endorses Cowen enthusiastically

Theroux, just elected township assessor, said the job "isn't my cup of tea at this time," and seconded Ryan's enthusiasm for Cowen

AT LEAST one encouragement to push the nomination through is to deny any chance of opposition forming within the organization

There is potential for divisiveness, with the more conservative Republicans enjoying a certain base of power in the Wheeling Township Republican organizations

Whoever is confirmed for Schlickman's job will have to run for the office in the spring of 1970 in an election open to all registered township Republicans

Other names being discussed for the office include Fred Yonkers, vice chairman of the Republican Organization, Dwight Walton, newly elected Arlington Heights trustee, and John Gillen, president of the Township Republican Club

UPON HIS reelection as state representative in 1968, before any hint of the Rumsfeld resignation, Schlickman announced that he would seek to retain the committeeman's job in 1970

Resigning his base of power could be a temporary thing for Schlickman, with the possibility of his taking over again next year should he fail in his congressional bid

"But," he has been quoted as saying, "If I run for Congress, that will be the last fling " And he evidently wants his hands free to dance

Pass Housing Law

The Arlington Heights Village Board last night passed a toughened fair housing law without exemptions for certain single-family homeowners, sent back to the public safety committee the controversial radar question, and reached an agreement with Rolling Meadows on the Isenstein-Parker property between the two

First, by a 5 to 2 vote, the board passed the amendment to the fair housing law, and dropped a section that would exempt single-family homeowners who neither sell through a real estate agent nor advertise their property publicly for sale

William Griffin and Burton Thompson two new members of the board, provided the swing votes They shifted from an earlier position of keeping the exemption, and their votes were enough to kill the exemption

SECOND, THE BOARD agreed that too many questions about the use and installation of radar remained So, after a suggestion by Village Pres John Walsh the board voted to allow the public safety committee of the board take up specific questions about usage

Finally, Village Atty Jack Siegel announced, after an executive session of the board, that the village is dropping its suit against Rolling Meadows on the Isenstein Parker property

The decision followed an agreement with Rolling Meadows that commercial property on the development would be screened, that building height would be limited to 40 feet, and that Rolling Meadows would not annex east of the new Wilke Road and Kirchoff Road in southwestern Arlington Heights

State Rep Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, predictably became the 13th District's fourth congressional candidate Monday

He unexpectedly resigned his position as Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, excusing himself for reasons of time, both for himself and what should be given the organization.

He will not resign his five-year tenure in the Illinois House of Representatives, however. Unless, according to Schlickman, "only at a time it is certain I'm going to Congress "

Schlickman, 39, announced his candidacy for Congress Monday in a press conference in Arlington Towers The Northwest suburbs were first on his schedule of press sessions he held throughout the district that day

HE FACES in the Oct 7 primary race the declared candidates — Gerald Marks of Wilmettee, Joseph Mathewson of Winnetka and Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth

Marks Monday commented that he had talked to Schlickman Sunday evening Marks related that he had offered his support to Schlickman if he is the primary winner

Schlickman said the main issue in his campaign will be qualification for office He traced public service through five years in the Illinois House and five years on the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees

A second qualifier he mentioned was his legal background as a lawyer in general practice Thirdly, he cited service to the Republican Party as Wheeling Township committeeman, pointing out its success in delivering Republican votes

"Wheeling Township in the last election (Nov 5) got statewide attention and recognition," he said He later mentioned that the township delivered the largest plurality in the last congressional election of any township in the district.

New Face for Familiar Guide

It is typical of our age that many great literary achievements go unheralded until they become best sellers. Not so with the 1969 telephone book. Staff writer Sandra Browning observes work that may soon rival "Portnoy's Complaint" for the public's attention.

by SANDRA BROWNING

Leonard Zyzda again captured the "Last Name in the Local Listings" crown in the recently delivered Illinois Bell Telephone Co. northwest region directory.

The winner was announced last week when directories were delivered to homes throughout Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights resident Zyzda won the title last year by edging out former winner Andrew Zywicke.

A-Anderson Exterminating lost its title of first listing in the local section. In an obviously pre-meditated move to gain the title, the Morton Grove firm of A-Adams School of Driving landed first.

THE YEAR'S DIRECTORY, one of the longest in recent memory, set standards in many areas. One of those areas, however, was not cover design.

The cover for this year takes second place in attractiveness to last year's in both color and content.

Last year's light blue cover with a sketch of the Arlington Heights Historical Society on the front was more appealing.

The 1969 cover features a montage of color photographs perhaps meant to illustrate the many facets of Illinois. Included in the grouping are pictures of a swimming pool, a farm, an unidentified historical marker, an airport, a factory and a boat.

THE CONGLOMERATION of unrelated pictures is dubiously held together with the caption: "Not without thy wondrous story . . . Can be told the nation's glory . . . Illinois . . . Illinois."

Other records set by the new book include a new high in the number of yellow pages. Yellow pages this year number 389, edging out last year's record of 344

Local listings take up 148 pages, a slim increase of seven over last year.

In the local listings, the Johnsons in the area again placed first in the number of listings. Johnsons added six to their team size from last year, bringing the total to 349. Six are listed as Robert E. Johnson and four as Carl W. Johnson.

The Smiths made only a feeble attempt to challenge the Johnsonn's titles, totaling 284 listings for the year.

KEEPING UP WITH THE Joneses was no problem for the Johnsons and the Smiths. The Joneses made a token showing for third place with only 103 names.

John Doe didn't even enter the competition. Not even a Jane or a Hester Doe is listed in the new book.

In the race for the largest number of listings in one category in the yellow pages, the winner was "physicians" with an amazing total of 350. The listings tumbled over almost four pages of straight printing with no illustrations.

The large number of listings for doctors undoubtedly lends support to the criticism that America is a "sick" society. The identification of less than 30 of the 350 physicians as general practitioners lends proof to the theory that the country is in an age of specialization

Women's apparel shops outran the number of listings for men's clothing shops by a margin of almost 2 to 1 Women can choose from 49 different listings while men have only 25.

THE TELEPHONE COMPANY had a bad showing of three hits out of five tries on the spelling of John Hersey High School in northeastern Arlington Heights It was spelled correctly three times and spelled "Hershey" twice.

The company's batting average with Dist. 25 wasn't much better. The district recently installed a new phone system to allow persons to call many of the district's schools directly instead of funneling them through a main switchboard. However, the new directory lists only the main switchboard number.

The phone company did manage to rearrange items in the yellow pages so that large ads for funeral homes and an ad which read "Miss the folks you love? Call them long distance" did not appear on the same page, as they did last year.

'Scare' Sex Flyers Not in Context

A Herald check of "scare" material being circulated in the suburban area using excerpts from sex education material reportedly in use in the San Francisco School district reveals that the items presented were taken out of context.

"The fact that the near-identical flyer appears in widely scattered areas appears to indicate that a well organized and financed group on the national level is triggering a movement," said George Canrinus, coordinator of health, physical education, athletics and recreation for the San Francisco Unified School District.

The two-page pamphlet, circulated locally throughout Dist. 21, has been widely circulated in San Francisco as well as in other parts of the country, Canrinus said.

"WE HAVE observed that in each case the format and content is practically identical, except for the differences in the names of local school members and the local organization sponsoring the 'anti' campaign," Canrinus told the Herald.

The document being circulated in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area, is "almost entirely out of context, irrelevant, or untrue" said Canrinus.

Canrinus refuted statements in the pamphlet point-by-point for the Herald.

Edward Kemmett, president of the San Francisco School Board, and one of the two members voting against the Health and Family Life curriculum has expressed disapproval of the pamphlet, which quotes him, according to Canrinus.

Adolfo de Urioste, the other dissenter who is described as casting a "no" vote, only opposed the K-3 program, not the fourth-through-twelfth-grade program, he said.

The slides taken from the Time-Life Corp. filmstrip, "How Babies are Made," were among 40 slides depicting plant and animal reproduction. The picture of a couple in bed was not used in the San Francisco schools, although it is used in the pamphlet now being circulated in this area.

"WE DID NOT purchase additional copies of 'How Babies are Made' because of a price increase and because other aids were preferred by our teachers," Canrinus said.

The book from which quotes are excerpted is "A Doctor Talks to Five to Eight-Year-Olds," Budlong Press, Chicago, and is "a reference recommended by many medical authorities, including our Medical Society, Canrinus stated.

The pamphlet quotes extensively from a television program, "The Time of Your Life," saying this is health and family life education for intermediate prepared by BRITE for KQED Instructional Television Service, Grades four, five and six. This series is produced by the educational TV station, not by the school department, said Canrinus.

"Evaluations indicate that from 85 to 95 per cent of parents who have seen the entire 15 programs approve of it for the upper elementary grades," he said.

HOWEVER, he continued, "Our district has deleted this aid from our guide because we prefer to recommend aids which teachers can use at the most appropriate time, rather than be bound by the rigidity of a TV schedule."

The quotations used in the "scare" pamphlet are taken from the teacher's guide, distributed by the producer of the TV programs.

"These quotations are correct," Canrinus said. "It should be kept in mind that the guide is a publication for experienced and trained teachers, most of whom use discussion techniques in subjects."

To Break Ground

Ground will be broken at 8:30 a.m. Thursday for the Buffalo Grove Shopping Center. The eight-acre center, at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, is expected to open next November.

Attending the Thursday ceremony will be Donald Thompson, Buffalo Grove village president; Bob Babbin of Babbin and Associates, the architect; Dan Marsch of National Tea Co.,; Joe Rand for Kenroy Inc.; and Stuart Grill, president of the Contracting and Consulting Corp. of Rollin Meadows.

ROBERT P. WEBER, director of commercial leasing for Kenroy Inc., said the Mall would be the first "neighborhood" enclosed air conditioned shopping center in the Chicago area. He also revealed that 80 per cent of the mall has been leased.

The Mall will have parking facilities for nearly 500 cars.

Eighteen stores will make up the shopping center, including National Tea and Kare Drugs. Both companies will operate from the same 23,200 square-foot premises. A 15,000-square-foot Scotts Family Store (a junior department store) will be another major tenant.

Others who have signed leases are: A men's wear retailer; family shoe store; cleaners; optometrist; Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Shop; combination beauty parlor and cosmetic boutique; Simoniz car wash, with a new automated prototype.

WEBER SAID, "We are surrounded by almost a dozen major volume residential builders presently at work on over 3,000 homes."

He also stated that 670 apartment units will be constructed directly across from the Mall in addition to an adjacent 450 units already underway.

Kenroy Inc. is developer of the Buffalo Grove Mall. General contractor is Contracting and Consulting Corp. Robert Babbin & Associates is the architect.

View PTA Operation

The Arlington Heights Council of Parent-Teacher Associations will sponsor a program on parliamentary procedure tomorrow. Open to all PTA members in the village, the session will take place at Pioneer Park from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Tomorrow's program is fourth in a series which features basic PTA policies, structure and committee work.

Mrs. Charles Green, former director for Dist. 37 of the PTA, will conduct the course on parliamentary procedure.

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Teachers in School Dist 59 will earn salaries between $7,000 and $14,770 next year if they ratify a package on which both the board of education and Teachers Council leadership agreed last week.

Friday is the date set for voting on the measure, and passage is expected.

Details of the package were released yesterday evening by Supt. Dr Donald Thomas.

IN ADDITION TO a provision of 14 "steps" each representing a year's experience, the pay scale also includes increase provisions for educational background in six increments

Three different contracts are being offered, ranging from a basic teaching proposal through "Career Services" contract provisions, which in effect result in year round employment.

Enhancement of fringe benefits was a major factor in acceptance of the contract by district teachers; the agreement reached was based on a schedule of only $100 higher than one which teachers rejected last month.

Most significant in the contract is the statement, "Historically and philosophically the board of education is committed to make every effort to allocate extra funds to decrease class size. The board of education pledges to continue to support this program."

Additionally, "The Teachers Council may enter an alleged grievance for any teacher claiming to be given an intolerable teaching load. An intolerable teaching load is defined as one that is in severe opposition to current education research."

THOSE TWO POINTS were dear ones to teachers and represent a compromise on one of the major factors in briefly deadlocked talks.

The teachers wanted limitations of class size written into the contracts, something the board of education said it could not do. Instead, both compromised on the point and kept the statement general enough to avoid problems with monetary limitations.

Increases in sick and personal business leave allocations was coupled with a doubling of insurance policies available at no cost to faculty members.

A point won by teachers was the insertion of the statement, "No teacher shall be transferred for discriminatory reasons. Prior to being transferred, the teacher shall have a conference with the (school) principal.

PROCEDURES FOR grievances from teachers, as well as operation of a "sick leave bank" were also written into the contracts.

But perhaps the most important in years to come will be the recognition of the School Dist. 59 Teachers Council as sole bargaining representative "over employment conditions, consideration for services rendered, for all certified teachers except substitute teachers and certified teachers assigned to administrative positions."

While it may not seem significant in the context of School Dist. 59, the recognition of the Teachers' Council as a formal bargaining agent for teachers represents a small victory for professional teacher groups in contrast to teacher unions, mostly under the American Federation of Teachers banner.

Everybody's Happy

The exuberant spirit of those marching in the Arlington Heights Memorial Day parade Friday matched the enthusiasm of onlookers.

The crowd lining the parade route spontaneously applauded many times and shouted their appreciation when the Elk Grove High School Band, garbed in yellow and green, boomed "Can't Take My Eyes Off Of You."

Youth was well represented in the march Camp Fire girls, Scout troops and school bands preceded tiny girls doing cartwheels and exhibiting the fruits of their dancing lessons.

MANY CHILDREN, active in the YMCA Indian Guide groups, were accompanied by fathers having "the time of their lives." Painted, smeared and feathered the men wore multi-hued Indian outfits and grins

Theme of the floats was generally patriotic The Elks Lodge had a flag and a slogan "love it or leave." Arlington Realty had a shiny gold liberty bell and the Elk Grove Republicans pulled a brown and white float with "IKE" emblazoned on top

The most amusing entry could have been an old-fashioned black wagon with signs proclaiming 'Doc Harris Drugs Pills, Cures and Liniment Lotion"

COMMERCIALISM was introduced once when a man with cart selling pinwheels and monkeys on a stick yelled, "Get your souvenirs." Not many did.

Fire trucks brought up the rear of the parade and again exuberance was the order of the day. Young firemen hanging on sparkling trucks used their free hands to wave to the kids.

Sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 891, the march began at 9:30 a.m. and wound through downtown Arlington Heights. Ceremonies at War Memorial Park followed.

The 25-year-old soldier is a 1962 graduate of Prospect High School, Mount Prospect, and received a B. S. degree in business administration in 1967 from McPherson (Kans.) College.

Patrols Given Treat

Students at North School who have served patrol duty all year will take time off today to see the Chicago Cubs in action.

The bus trip and ball game are sponsored by the PTA in appreciation for the extra services performed by the group.
